Firemen use ladder-mounted hose on longhouse

Roaring blaze badly chars carvers' longhouse, 2 poles

By NORMAN GIDNEY

A compressor backfire ignited wood preservative and touched off a roaring blaze this morning in the Haida-style longhouse next to the Provincial Museum.

The traditional Indian longhouse used by Indian carvers and two totem poles standing in Thunderbird Park at Belleville and Douglas were badly charred but remained standing after firemen doused the flames.

Witnesses said the fire started about 10:15 a.m. Within minutes the interior of the wooden carving shed was a mass of flame, feeding on dry cedar shavings, logs and boards.

It soon attracted a crowd of spectators, forced back across the street by the intense heat in the early stages.

Carvers Richard Hunt and Tim Paul worked there, replicating old designs for the museum, but neither they nor museum ethnology head Peter McNair could be reached for comment on the damage estimate or the value of the poles.

They had just shipped a large pole to Scotland and several unfinished works were lying on the floor of the shed, badly burnt. Their valued collection of tools was also believed to have been destroyed.

Don Williams, area manager for the B.C. Buildings Corp., said a contractor was spraying wood preservative inside the open-sided longhouse. His compressor backfired when it was started up after refilling and ignited the liquid.

Museum and archives staff just sitting down to coffee next door in the museum coffee shop saw the smoke and ran over with fire extinguishers.

Victoria MLA Gordon Hanson was also hauling hose on the site. He said he had been driving by when a woman shouted to him to call the police because the shed was on fire.

Derek Reimer, head of the archives' aural history division, was another volunteer who tried to put out the blaze before the fire trucks arrived.

Toronto residents Mike and Louise Schwarzer were walking along Belleville in front of Thunderbird Park when they saw a puff of smoke and they watched as the building burst into flames.

Schwarzer said he yelled to park staff, who notified the fire department. The main building was engulfed in flames in a few minutes.

"It burned so fast you'd think there was hay in there. It went up like a matchstick," Schwarzer told the Times.

No hostage release: militants

Times News Services

World leaders expressed sympathy at the death Sunday of the deposed shah of Iran and some said they hoped it would lead to the release of the 52 American hostages.

But the people Mohammed Reza Pahlavi once ruled danced in the streets at the news he had lost his fight to cancer at the age of 60.

And a spokesman for Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said the death of the deposed monarch would have no effect on the U.S. hostages seized by young Iranian militants to try to force his return for trial. And the militants were reported by the BBC as saying the death will not lead to freedom for the captives because the other half of their original demand — return of the Pahlavi dynasty's wealth — still stands.

They also charged the United States killed the deposed monarch.

The United States, which backed the ex-shah during the 38 years he ruled from the Peacock throne, acknowledged his passing in a muted statement that said, "His death marks the end of an era in Iran, which all hope will be followed by peace and stability."

The State Department said President and Mrs. Carter "are sending their personal condolences to the shah's family."

The White House said it could not predict what effect the ousted ruler's death would have on the fate of the American hostages, who spent their 268th day in captivity today.

Former U.S. president Nixon, who is en route to Cairo for the funeral, and a few other foreign leaders mourned the ex-shah publicly.

Tehran Radio withheld news of the shah's death for about two hours after reports flashed from Cairo, then interrupted its regular programming to announce: "Mohammad Reza Pah-

Airlines start price war on transatlantic flights

LONDON (AP) — A transatlantic fare war erupted today when two of the world's major airlines announced tit-for-tat price cuts on standby tickets and vowed to offer the cheapest flight.

British Airways started the battle on Sunday with plans to undercut even Laker Airways' "no frills" Skytrain service with a London-New York single standby fare of £84 ($233 Canadian).

Today, Trans World Airlines took up the challenge and trimmed its off-peak standby fare to £82.50 ($229).

But within minutes, British Airways knocked a further £2 ($5.50) off their price, making the rate £82 ($227.50). And the airline warned that it is "determined to stay in front" of its rivals and will undercut any price.

Both airlines also cut the fares for flights between London and Boston, Los Angeles, Chicago and Philadelphia.

"It's not a game," said British Airways spokesman Diane Kane.

"We will match them" pledged TWA's vice-president, Neil Effman, at a London news conference. "We are not going to be in the market place with higher fares than anyone else."

The new fares take effect in September and other airlines are expected to follow the TWA and BA lead. Pan American, for example, has already asked to reduce its fares between Britain and the U.S.

BA's latest London-New York fare now is £3 ($8) less than Laker's Skytrain and £14 ($39) below BA's current standby price.

Now the industry is waiting for Laker to make a move.

"We don't know what Laker will do," Effman said.

Airline officials hope that the lower fares, which still require government approval, will help turn around the sagging transatlantic business hit by falling numbers of U.S. passengers deterred from visiting Europe because of the declining dollar.

A total of 13 airlines now fly the U.S.-Britain route.

Beer: minister watching but not intervening

Labor Minister Jack Heinrich has no immediate plans to intervene in the B.C. beer industry lockout now in its third day.

If outside sources are not tapped, hotel sources said pub stocks will peter out within three weeks. Liquor stores already are out of beer.

Heinrich said intervention by him would be meaningless until the two sides show a willingness to work toward a settlement.

He said his ministry will watch developments closely and he will take another look at the dispute Tuesday or Wednesday.

Heinrich said appointment of an industrial inquiry commissioner is doubtful because the breweries will not agree with a union request for such an appointment.

The minister said if there is a sign of movement he would prefer to see mediator Ken Albertini come back to resume negotiations.

Molson's, Labatt's and Carling-O'Keefe, largest breweries in the province, locked out about 1,400 members of the Brewery, Winery and Distillery Workers Union early Saturday following a breakdown in contract talks.

In Victoria, the 110-member local — employees of Labatt — held an organizational meeting after setting up pickets this morning.

Spokesmen said their strategy would depend on developments in the next few days, and whether Albertini re-enters the dispute.

Thetis Lake drowning victim found

A 58-year-old city bus driver drowned in Thetis Lake Sunday afternoon.

The body of William Hele, 1755 Kings, was found by other swimmers in about five feet of water in a secluded part of the lake, Colwood RCMP reported.

Foul play is not suspected. It is believed the victim was swimming by himself.

Hele is survived by his wife, Sydna, and a daughter, Mrs. Norma Beauregard of Vancouver.

Ford loss: it's 'incredible'

DETROIT (AP) — Nobody knows how much money Ford Motor Co. is going to lose on its home turf this year but it will be — to borrow Ford's advertising slogan — Incredible!

One Wall Street analyst says the company will lose almost $4 billion on the manufacture of cars and trucks in North America. More precisely, the estimate by David Eisenberg, who covers the industry for Sanford C. Bernstein and Co., is $3.979 billion.

Over-all, Eisenberg predicts Ford will lose $1.7 billion this year, compared with a profit of $1.17 billion in 1979.

The more-publicized losses at Chrysler Corp., already $1.017 billion for the first six months of the year, could wind up for the full year at $1.2 billion, according to government estimates.

General Motors reported last week it lost $412 million in the second quarter and $257 million so far this year. American Motors Corp. reported a loss of $84.9 million in the quarter ended June 30, the third quarter of its fiscal year. AMC's loss in the past nine months totalled $70.9 million.

To all outside predictions Ford gives a stock answer. Said one spokesman who asked not to be identified: "We don't predict our earnings or losses. We have nothing to say."

A clearer picture may emerge when Ford issues its second-quarter financial statement this week. The company lost $164 million in the first quarter, an overseas profit of $309 million and a loss of $473 million in the U.S.

The turn to small cars and the recession have ravaged Ford.

Princess cartoon stirs storm

EDMONTON (CP) — An editorial cartoon showing Princess Margaret in a prostitute-infested area has sparked a furore in Britain and prompted the Edmonton Sun to say the cartoon was not published for malicious reasons.

The morning tabloid published an editorial cartoon Friday showing Princess Margaret being shooed away from a prostitute-infested area of downtown Edmonton by a burly policeman. A passing motorist was shown leering at the princess who was wearing a low-cut dress and a bracelet with the name "Roddy" inscribed on it.

"The Edmonton Sun is basically in support of the monarchy," said David Bailey, Sun managing editor. "However, we don't believe Princess Margaret is a true member of the Royal Family considering the scandals that have surrounded her.

"The cartoon was not published for malicious reasons nor did we think it was in poor taste."

He said the tabloid used the cartoon in a light-hearted way.

The cartoon made front-page news in Britain with the London Sun calling it an insult to the princess who has just finished a week-long tour of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Brutal slayings in west end Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Police are working on the theory that robbery was a motive in Saturday's brutal slayings of four occupants of a house in the west end of Toronto.

The mutilated bodies of the victims, Leonard Martindale, 55, Pearl Savas, 51, Hugh Thomas Pattengale, 56, and Ronald Edward MacDonald, 48, were found Saturday afternoon in the rear of the home. They were tied up and gagged with their necks slashed.

Neighbors said Miss Savas and Martindale were living together. Pattengale and MacDonald were boarders at the house.

The case was described by a homicide detective as one of the most gruesome he had ever seen.

Autopsies revealed Miss Savas bled to death from the stab wound in her neck, while Martindale died of a gunshot wound in the head as well as a neck wound. MacDonald died from a neck wound and Pattengale died from a damaged brain and skull fracture resulting from the stabbing.

Martindale, manager of the Boulevard Inn, left his office about 1:30 a.m. Saturday after locking some of the pub's Friday night receipts in the safe, said Marvin Kack, an assistant manager at the pub.

Martindale returned about 20 minutes later, opened the safe and removed most of its contents, Kack said. The bottom half of the safe was "cleaned out" when the inn, about four blocks from the murder scene, opened for business Saturday, he said.

The murders were discovered by a hotel employee, William Horechka, when he was sent to the house by pub owner Albert Nightingale to find out why Martindale had failed to show up for work.

Police said Horechka had tried the front door of the house, then looked in the front window when he got no response. He saw the four bodies lying on the floor in the dining room.

Kack said information that Martindale had returned to the pub after locking up came from Chubb Security Systems, which had to be notified to avoid setting off the alarm system. Police would not say whether any of the victims were used as hostages to force Martindale to open the safe, or whether any money was found in the house.

Shah's death won't free hostages: militants lavi, the bloodsucker of the century, has died at last."

Later broadcasts said rejoicing Iranians poured into the streets of Tehran, flashed their car lights on and off and jammed newsstands to buy extras the newspapers rushed from the presses.

In the holy city of Qom, "people celebrated the occasion on the streets by dancing" and blowing trumpets, the official Pars news agency said.

The former shah, who died in exile as a hounded, deposed monarch, will be buried Tuesday with "full honors" in a mosque housing the remains of modern Egyptian kings.

But not a single world leader, except for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat who granted the shah refuge, will attend the funeral of the former arbiter of the vast oil wealth that made rulers vie for the good will of Iran's "King of Kings."

Wasted by cancer and at least five operations in 18 months of exile in five nations, the shah died Sunday of heart failure and internal bleeding, with his last words, according to Egyptian medical sources, pleading:

"Please agree on a (treatment) program as quickly as possible and let me know."

In Washington, rival Iranian demonstrators, many chanting slogans and waving banners and some wielding sticks, clashed with each other and with police in a series of skirmishes Sunday on the streets of downtown Washington.

By the time the series of rallies ended in late afternoon, more than 35 persons — including two police officers — had been treated for injuries, mostly minor, and 110 persons had been arrested. Traffic was periodically disrupted as police chased protesters through downtown streets on foot, scooter and horse.

The focus of the day's activities was a rally in Lafayette Square sponsored by the Iran Freedom Foundation, whose founder, exiled Iranian diplomat Ali Akbar Tabatabai, was assassinated last Tuesday in the doorway of his suburban Bethesda, Md., home.

President and Mrs. Carter sent a message of condolence to the shah's family, but a brief statement issued by the U.S. state department had apparently been worded to avoid provoking the revolutionary regime further. It expressed neither regret for his death nor tribute to his long partnership with the United States and said:

"History will record that he led the country at a time when profound changes were taking place. His death marks the end of an era in Iran, which all hope will be followed by peace and tranquillity."

This was in marked contrast to tributes from the Republican side of the fence.

Nixon said: "For over 30 years the shah was a loyal friend and ally of the United States and a personal friend as well. Tragically, he died a man without a country."

Former state secretary Henry Kissinger called the deposed monarch "a good friend of the United States who stood by seven presidents over 35 years of his rule. He died abandoned by all his friends — except President Sadat."

And David Rockefeller, chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank, said he believed history would vindicate the shah. "The distressing political and economic circumstances of present-day Iran poignantly reflect the loss of the shah's constructive leadership."

Comment from other governments was slow and there was no reaction from Ottawa.

The British government expressed sorrow, recalled the "close relations" between the shah and British governments.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France sent a message of condolence to Pahlavi's wife, but his government had no comment.

Sadat, who granted the former occupant of the Peacock Throne refuge in March after he left Panama rather than undergo surgery there, ordered a "full honors" funeral Tuesday for the ruler.

In a pointed snub at alleged cowardice by world leaders, Sadat said no present rulers would attend the burial Tuesday of the former shah in the Al Rifale mosque, the burial site of Egyptian royalty. The mosque also briefly held the remains of the shah's father, Reza Shah, who also died in exile in 1944 after abdicating.

"No heads of state — even if anyone asks," Sadat said of the funeral plans.

"We shall apologize politely because we received him and shall bid him farewell," Sadat said, explaining that the shah requested a simple funeral but Sadat would offer a funeral befitting "a chief of state."

The shah, who had at least three operations in Egypt and was confined in the Maadi military hospial the last 31 days of his life, lapsed into a coma Sunday morning and died at 9:50 a.m. local time despite massive blood transfusions and efforts to revive him with electric shocks, an official Egyptian report said.

"Circulatory shock," eventually killed Pahlavi, one of the attending Egyptian doctors said.

At the shah's bedside when he died were Empress Farah, who fled with him from Iran into exile on Jan. 16, 1979, and heir to the throne Prince Reza, 19, and his brother. Farah, the shah's third wife, wept openly and ordered the body to be embalmed in "a purely Islamic fashion."

Iran's Majlis (parliament) speaker Ayatollah Hashemi Rafsanjani was quoted in the newspaper Kayhan today as saying: "The shah's death will bring about a change in the hostages issue and different committees in the parliament will start discussing the hostage issue next week."

Rafsanjani's view conflicts with that of most other Iranian politicians.

Meanwhile, strong signs have emerged that President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr's nomination of deputy interior minister Mostafa Mir-Salim as prime minister has run into trouble, threatening a new political deadlock that could delay the hostage debate.

One Tehran deputy, prominent clergyman and Islamic hardliner Hojatoleslam Mo'adikhah, said the hostages "will not be discussed in less than one month's time."

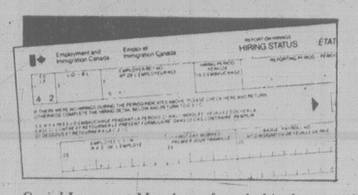
A new way to detect Unemployment Insurance abuse.

Most people getting unemployment insurance play by the rules. But some people don't seem to know that they can't take a job and collect benefits without telling us they're working. That's why employers are being asked to send us the starting date and Social Insurance Number or extracts from computer payroll tapes for each employee they hire or rehire. This information is cross-checked with the Social Insurance Numbers of people receiving unemployment insurance benefits. Only cases of potential abuse will ever surface. After investigation, anyone found receiving benefits to which they are not entitled will have to repay them.

It may be an honest mistake. Some people forget or don't understand they must tell Unemployment Insurance and report their total earnings when they start a new job. In that case, repayment is all that's required. But, a penalty or prosecution may follow when the new system detects people wrongly collecting benefits.

If you are collecting unemployment insurance benefits, and start a new job, please say so on your UI claimant report card.



Social Insurance Numbers of newly-hired employees are now being cross-checked with those of people receiving unemployment insurance benefits. Only cases of potential abuse will ever surface.

WHO DO YOU THINK SHOULD PAY THE LEAST FOR AUTOPLAN INSURANCE?

Maybe the young guy because he doesn't have much money? Or the older man because he just might be a more responsible driver? How about the woman? She may drive less and more cautiously. The logger? He certainly doesn't have to fight city rush-hour traffic.

The answer: none of the above, necessarily.

Drivers who should pay the least possible amount for their Autoplan insurance are those who don't cause accidents. It doesn't make any difference – and it shouldn't make any difference – whether they are male or female, young or old, married or single, or where they live in the province.

That's the whole idea behind the F.A.I.R. program – Fundamental Auto Insurance Rating. When F.A.I.R. is fully in place, everyone will be entitled, as their right, to the same base Autoplan premium, depending upon the use of their vehicle. Only drivers who are responsible for an accident will be charged an additional premium of $300 spread over three years. And the more accidents they cause, the more they'll pay.

It's simple. It's logical. It's F.A.I.R.

NEED A FRIEND? There are lots to be had at the Victoria shelter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals at 3150 Napier Lane but fawns like these aren't for adoption. Three were brought in recently and have since been placed on up-Island acreage. SPCA officials advise that, unless the mother is dead, fawns are better off in their natural environment. They say fawns should be left at least 18 hours before you even think of touching them. If you'd still like a pet, the shelter's number is 388-6627. John McKay photo

Thwarted escapers grab guard

MATSQUI (CP) — Two prisoners, thwarted in an attempted escape from the federal prison in this Fraser Valley community, held a guard hostage for four hours before giving up peacefully Sunday.

The pair, one disguised as a woman and the other dressed in civilian clothing, attempted to walk out of the prison during an open house Sunday afternoon.

The men, apparently armed with knives, took a 43-year-old guard hostage inside the front gate when their plan went astray, demanding a vehicle and exit from the prison.

After four hours of negotiations, the prisoners gave up and released the unidentified guard unharmed.

Penetentiary spokesman Jack Stewart identifed the prisoners as Eric Oswald, 21, serving time for robbery, and Real Cardinal, 37, serving a life sentence for several offences, including attempted murder.

Tax sought on berries

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — The United States agriculture department is seeking a 14-per-cent tax on Fraser Valley raspberries sold in the U.S., the manager of the B.C. Raspberry Growers Association said Saturday.

C. H. Penner said the B.C. growers will sell about six million pounds of berries to U.S. processors this year — about the same as last year.

Washington growers say the Canadian raspberries are being sold to U.S. processors at less than cost of production which they estimate at 50 cents a pound.

Singing fisherman moved to dust off his Canada song

VANCOUVER (CP) — A song written for an elementary school class may bring back to the limelight a local singer who rose to prominence in the 1960s before exchanging recording studios for fishing nets.

Tom Northcott, known for such hits as Girl from the North County, Sunny Goodge Street and 1941, has spent the past few years fishing out of Campbell River.

However, when Northcott, now 36, left the music business, he didn't stop writing and singing music.

"I like music but I don't like the business of music," he says. "I'd rather raise a family and fish a few months a year."

It was the ongoing constitutional talks and the recent referendum on sovereignty-association in Quebec which prompted Northcott to dig out a song he wrote five years ago for the Grade 3 class in New Westminster, of his wife Tanya.

"It wasn't really intended for anything, but as events in Canada progressed with the referendum and the constitutional thing the song took on more meaning," Northcott says. "I thought there was no better time than now so I went ahead and did it."

A few weeks before the July 1 holiday, Northcott left his two fishing boats in Campbell River and with the help of friends at Little Mountain Sound studio here, put together, in the space of a weekend, The Canada Song.

The backup was done by the local band Straight Lines and a children's choir from the Broadway Tabernacle led by Iona Brooks.

A few hundred copies of the 45 single were made, with a stereo version of the song on one side and a mono version on the reverse.

About 300 copies were distributed to radio stations throughout Canada.

Listener response has been strong, with many calls to radio stations asking where the record can be purchased.

Brooks says calls have come from Ontario radio stations asking for copies.

However, Northcott says it was intended just as a one-shot thing.

THE MANAGEMENT OF ENERGY IN CANADA. ONE OF A SERIES:

CANADIAN KNOW-HOW WILL HELP YOU RUN YOUR CAR ON LEFTOVERS.

WHAT IS IN A BARREL OF CRUDE OIL?
Crude oil, domestically produced, or from foreign sources, arrives at the refinery usually by tanker or pipeline. After the refinery gets through with it, takes out the gases, mainly propane and butane, the gasoline for your car and aviation fuel, and the slightly heavier fuels such as diesel oil and furnace oil, what's left? You've got thick black residual, or heavy oil, that is now used to fuel industrial furnaces, and in Atlantic Canada, burned to generate electricity.

With oil prices starting to skyrocket out of sight we have to find better uses for our residual oil, or leftovers. There has to be a way to squeeze more out of each barrel of crude.

FIRST THINGS FIRST.
Since industry no longer has the luxury of residual oil for its boilers, alternative fuels had to be found.

We found them. Western coal is moving into eastern Canada and we've found that natural gas, wood wastes, even our everyday garbage, can be burned effectively and inexpensively.

This action will increasingly free up, so to speak, the supplies of residual oil that would otherwise have been burned.

CANADIAN REFINERIES TO SPEND $3 BILLION ON UPGRADING LEFTOVERS.
Spending $3 billion is the right way to go. To get the same result from an oil-sands project would cost double the amount and take at least twice as long to achieve.

Refining technology has made it possible to take leftover oil and upgrade it. The result, an additional 125,000 barrels per day of gasoline, diesel fuel and home heating oil from the same amount of crude oil.

Over the next five years, Canadian refineries and scientists will be getting their teeth into this vitally important project. Its ultimate success will mean getting more out of our present and future oil supply, less dependency on unreliable foreign oil supplies and the development of new markets for our other domestic fuels.

Residual oil upgrading, a positive step towards the successful management of energy supplies in Canada.

Belshaw chopped from UBC payroll

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cyril Belshaw, currently in a Swiss jail on a murder charge in the death of his wife, has lost his source of income as an anthropology professor at University of British Columbia.

UBC spoksman Al Hunter said Sunday that now the academic year is finished the university has dropped Belshaw, 58, from the payroll.

The body of Belshaw's wife, Joy, was found in a plastic bag near a remote road in Switzerland almost 18 months ago. She had been reported missing earlier in Paris.

Hunter said even though Belshaw has been unable to teach since he returned to Switzerland several months ago, he continued to receive his salary, estimated to be in the vicinity of $40,000 a year.

Filipino crew strikes in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fourteen Filipino crew members of a Panamanian ship went on strike Sunday over back wages.

Gerry McCullough, an inspector with the International Transport Federation, said the crew members haven't received wages since May and some are being paid less than $160 a month.

The 14, from a 22-man crew, want ITF wages of about $1,400 a month.

The ship was put under strike after longshoremen finished loading it at Vancouver Wharves in North Vancouver. The freighter Parisco is carrying potash to China for its Japanese owners.

Building guides branch transferred

The B.C. Buildings Standards Branch has been transferred to the municipal affairs ministry from the labor ministry, Municipal Affairs Minister William Vander Zalm has announced.

Until the transfer, administration of the B.C. building code and the board established to hear appeals to code decisions were under the jurisdiction of municipal affairs. The Stadards Branch, originally established to assist the appeal board, came under labor.

The move brings all three organzations under one jurisdiction.

16-year-old charged with murder

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — RCMP have charged a 16-year-old youth with second-degree murder in the stabbing death of a 57-year-old woman.

Rose Elizabeth Sevigny's body was found by neighbors outside her Prince Rupert home Friday.

Name of the youth was withheld in accordance with the Juvenile Delinquents Act.

Girl, 18, held in hotel fire

CACHE CREEK (CP) — Police have an 18-year-old girl in custody in connection with a fire which destroyed six units of the Desert Inn on the Trans-Canada Highway and damaged four others near here during the weekend. There were no injuries.

Tuna revisited

Here we go again. Schools of albacore tuna are reported headed for Canadian waters off B.C. and United States fishermen are in hot pursuit. It'll be a year next month since the last time the tuna and the fishermen crossed into Canadian territorial waters — and in the interim the Canadian and American governments have failed to negotiate a settlement to the tuna question.

A repeat of last year's so-called tuna war in which 19 U.S. fishermen were arrested, had their catch confiscated and were forced to post a bond of $5,000 each, appears inevitable. So be it. Although the charges against the 19 fishermen are still before the B.C. Court of Appeal, Canada again has no choice but to enforce again its own laws and sovereignty.

This dispute arouses emotions on both sides of the border, but that doesn't alter its essentially silly nature. It's silly because the United States has taken a stance that puts Canada in the ridiculous position of a conquered nation.

Four years ago, both countries declared a 200-mile offshore fishing and mineral zone. But the Americans, when they created their Fishery Conservation and Management Act, specifically exempted control of highly migratory fish such as tuna. They thought the species should be under international control.

The U.S. Act went a step farther. It provided that the United States will not recognize the 200-mile zone of any other country which fails to accept that highly migratory fish like tuna fall under international jurisdiction.

Canada has not accepted this. It claims that tuna are under its offshore fish management legislation. Right or wrong in terms of stock management, it's still the law of this land.

It is not difficult to appreciate the outlandish nerve of the United States in not recognizing the law of another nation. It's like Canada unilaterally deciding that it won't recognize U.S. laws prohibiting pets into the country without rabies vaccinations. Could you imagine trying to tell U.S. customs officials that under Canadian law you are allowed to take Fido to California without his shots.

Canada wants to make a deal with United States that would take into account some of our concerns about salmon and herring. Since Canada catches very little tuna, our negotiators have attempted to make a swap arrangement.

But the U.S. will have no part of it. One White House official stated last year that "if there is to be a trade-off, it should apply to fishing tuna in one another's waters, but not to trading U.S. tuna privileges for herring privileges." Canada would have to develop a tuna fleet to benefit.

He added that state department officials are not greatly optimistic over the short-term prospects for a settlement of the tuna issue. Without a change in attitude south of the border, those words are as good this year as they were last.

Balanced viewpoints

Premier Bennett has been publicly hinting he would like "public-spirited media" throughout B.C. to offer him a little free space to continue his Ottawa-bashing routines.

Just what he has in mind isn't clear. The premier already has better access to the media than the average citizen. His speeches in the legislature or outside it, are normally covered by reporters from newspapers, radio and television. And he has exactly the same right as anyone else to write letters-to-the-editor.

This doesn't seem to satisfy the premier. Could the problem be that speeches are covered by reporters who report some parts and not others, who ask the premier's political opponents for reaction to what he says, and include background information that the premier would prefer to ignore. Letters to the editor may be printed nearly as written, but equal prominence will be given to answers from Opposition MLAs or federal officials.

The premier would like something different. He would like, for example, to take over some reporter's column for a weekend. Fair enough, if some reporter feels like a Friday afternoon off.

But he's not interested in other viewpoints. When a reporter said the column space might be available, but NDP leader Dave Barrett would be offered a similar column, the premier snapped, "What government is he with?"

A testy but not unexpected response. However, all is not lost. There's one publication available that will print all the premier wants without a dissenting word: the B.C. Government News.

"Some Australians are here Alex with an idea for a speedy ferry service to the mainland."

FRED CLEVERLEY

Military snubs warplane

WINNIPEG—Sitting on a grass airstrip at Carman, Manitoba about 50 miles from Winnipeg, the machine looks as if it could have come straight out of Buck Rogers, or Star Wars.

Christened the "Defender," it carries full pilot-protecting armor, 28 missiles, and is designed to work with tanks against other tanks.

Its designer, 36-year-old Bob Diemert, having been rebuffed by the Canadian military, has succeeded in interesting, on an unofficial basis, both U.S. astronaut James Irwin, and members of the U.S. Marine Corps.

The Canadian reaction was predictable. The Canadian forces, having just committed $4 billion to the purchase of F-18As, has no money for aircraft development or acquisition. The forces also have so few tanks that air support for tanks is out of the question.

Couldn't be done

When Diemert first approached the Canadian military with his idea, he was told that it would be impossible to build an aircraft with sufficient armor to do what he had in mind because the machine would not get off the ground.

Now that he has built a prototype, one that in taxi tests shows the potential of not only getting off the ground, but of being able to carry a substantial payload, he has been told simply that Canada is not interested.

"If Canada is not interested, then we are," said U.S. astronaut James Irwin when he took his first look at the Defender.

The design does not reflect only Diemert's thinking. It has come about after long consultations with armored corps officers from both Canada and the U.S., and after talks with pilots who fly the helicopters in NATO that provide the same type of tank liaison the Defender is designed to accomplish.

The Defender overcomes two helicopter problems, the lack of armor, and the lack of speed. Without armor, helicopters are forced to move slowly to avoid being knocked down by the first burst of hand-held machine gun fire.

The Defender carries protection for the pilot, and the wings are fabric covered, or, as Diemert describes them, "bullet passive."

What he means is that a burst of machine gun fire against the Defender would have no more effect on the machine's performance than it would have against a sailboat.

The reference to a sailboat is a calculated one. Diemert has created a unique wing design that allows the fabric to billow, giving a much lower stall speed. He has compensated for the resulting abrupt stall by mounting the horizontal stabilizer ahead of the wing, much like the Wright brothers did, and designing the stabilizer to stall first.

These are details that are noticed by aviation buffs. What the U.S. military has noticed is that the aircraft will run on diesel fuel, the same fuel used by tanks, and can be used, in a pinch as an aerial fuel truck for the tanks.

Its speed of 200 miles an hour is low by jet standards, but happens to almost match the speed of the Cessna 337s the American military converted for ground support in Vietnam.

By substituting fuel for armament, the Defender's range can be increased to 5,000 miles, sufficient for it to be flown non stop to distant staging areas, something that happens to fit into the American air support of its NATO forces.

Possibly the most attractive feature is the cost of the Defender. Diemert estimates that the aircraft could be produced, in quantity, for less than $30,000 a copy, plus armament.

That is about the price of a barebones light commercial aircraft. Because it is cheap, it is also simple to build and maintain. Diemert has designed it to be maintained by the same people who maintain the tanks it is designed to support.

Effective

Diemert says the tank officers he has discussed the Defender with have no doubts that it will be effective, and will be capable of clearing the path that has become so difficult with the invention of hand-held anti-tank weapons.

Diemert kept his machine under wraps until he was ready to taxi-test it, and eventually test fly it. Then he announced the Defender with a bit of a Barnum flair. He did this with a purpose. Had he simply attempted to get official transport approval quietly, he would have most probably been denied.

By splashing the Defender on national television, he hopes to get the chance to get it into the air legally.

It looks different from most conventional aircraft. It just might work.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Ideas are more important

"I believe from the depths of my heart that ideas are more important than personalities." So said Pierre Trudeau, Canada's most famous personality, to the recent Winnipeg convention of Liberals who had no ideas of importance and allowed 10 minutes' debate on vastly complex problems accumulated over decades.

Trudeau was right all the same, though in the wrong surroundings. But he must know that ideas don't come out of political gatherings where election votes are the sole objective and sacred, lifelong principles can be adjusted to suit.

In Canada, or ancient Egypt, politics have merely reflected or distorted ideas originated by obscure personalities in the Arabian desert, a cave in the Himalayas, a garret in Paris or a university in Edinburgh.

We cannot fairly blame Trudeau for his failure to produce an important idea in the swimming pool of Sussex Street since only three of them have appeared in the last hundred years or so, none in the present century. We can fairly blame him and his government, however, for mismanaging the bread-and-butter affairs of the nation when its economy lives on borrowed money, as its political system lives on the capital of ideas whose time has gone.

No quick fix

If the Liberal party of Canada has forgotten the meaning of liberalism while stumbling vaguely leftwards, if the Conservative party has forgotten the meaning of convervatism while lurching vaguely rightwards, modern societies everywhere also grope blindly for a magic idea that can solve the riddle of the ages without cost, pain or inconvenience. Alas, no quick fix has yet been devised.

Nevertheless, Trudeau (whatever you may think of him) is sincere in his belief that ideas are more important than personalities like himself. But what ideas does he have in mind?

He has always stood for social justice, though his policies fuel inflation that aggravates injustice. He stands, too, for the unity of the state when other men are trying to disrupt it in the curious notion that the parts are greater than the whole, that every province and community in Canada, like every tribe in Africa, should establish a sovereign government of its own.

No doubt Trudeau, the midnight scholar as distinguished from the televised personality of prime time, knows that the three truly explosive ideas of the last century have come from Karl Marx, Charles Darwin and Sigmund Freud, a remarkably trinity, who dwarf all living politicians.

Marx introduced community to practical politics and fathered the Russian and Chinese revolutions. Darwin perceived the evolution of life from crude to complicated forms. Freud investigated mankind's sexual instincts and rediscovered knowledge long known in older Eastern civilizations but disregarded in the West.

. . .plays down personality

All these ideas have been perverted beyond the recognition of their originators to confuse and sometimes poison contemporary societies. That communism produced today's Russia would be unimaginable to Marx. That evolution is now construed as banishing God from the universe would appal Darwin, a man of deep religious faith. That the study of the human intellect is interpreted as demonstrating the danger of any restraint on carnal appetites and embracing pleasure as life's only purpose would baffle Freud. All these prophets and their ideas were betrayed by their disciples. And any so-called Christian nation must surely confess its betrayal of a much older idea.

Likewise, democracy, another idea older than communism, evolution or Freudianism, as old, indeed as Platonic Greece, is often betrayed by self-styled democrats.

Even a relatively minor idea like Adam Smith's free market (as Trudeau noted in a moment of risky political candor) isn't working properly nowadays and in our various Canadian marketing boards we are returning to the medieval guilds that fixed wages, prices and production quotas.

The infallible market reached a climax of folly when it decided that the world's great powers should depend on a few Arab sheiks for their industrial and military life blood, their very survival. Fortunately Smith was not around to see this travesty of his doctrine and many additional exhibits of the same sort.

So, too, the later economic thesis of Maynard Keynes has lately reached its ultimate burlesque in the politics of the United States where Ronald Reagan repudiates the prophet and then promises to use his method of tax reduction in curing a business slump.

Rain dance

Only a peculiarly hard-hearted citizen could ignore the pathos of Trudeau's appeal for ideas in a conventicle of politicians whose single idea was to win Western votes. Only a personality in the secret anguish of decisions involving the whole future of our nation could have made such an appeal when he might just have well appealed for rain on the dry prairies.

But only a peculiarly thoughtless Canadian will fail to realize that in the vortex of contradictory ideas whirling around our species we are all too bewildered to choose between them, too smug to accept the truth of our situation, too fat to recognize that the rich nations and personalities cannot forever batten on the hungry and poor.

Thus Trudeau, like every intelligent man and woman, searches for the grand synthesis revealed long ago by all the ancient prophets but somehow lost by their followers. And thus transient personality overshadows immutable idea, image blurs reality and a political convention, briefly exciting on the electronic tube, has very little to do with common humanity.

Policy, not law

On July 9, a decision by the CRTC denied an application by Canadian Family Radio Limited for a new English language FM Station in Vancouver, despite the fact that approval in principle had been granted on February 13, 1979.

When questioned in committee for the logic for this decision, it was readily admitted by government officials that the CRTC "has taken the view in the past that specific or validly religious groups are, on balance, not capable of meeting" a policy directive which, they said, is interpreted from Section 3 of the Broadcast Act. That clause states:

"The programming provided by the Canadian broadcasting system should be varied and comprehensive and should provide reasonable balanced opportunity for the expression of different views on matters of public concern."

The decision itself would, however, not be a matter of concern had it been based on a premise of law. As far as I can determine, it was not. The decision rested exclusively with departmental policy entirely outside the ambit of law. The real issue is, then, to what extent the people of Canada wish to see a fundamental freedom curtailed by bureaucrats basing interpretation of law on policy rather than statute.

Several years ago, the CRTC made a similar move when it decided to regiment format for FM broadcasters. At that time public outcry was so great that Senator Ray Perrault, government leader in the senate, was instrumental in having his cabinet colleagues reverse that decision.

It is time again for the public to speak on this issue which is restricting the freedom we all cherish. A dangerous precedent has been set. — Benno Friesen, MP, Surrey-White Rock-North Delta.

Uses for sewage

It seems to me that it would make more sense, and employment, to implement alternative methods of dealing with our sewage.

Making more and longer outfalls makes as much sense as Sudbury's bigger stack. It serves only to spread the problem around.

Surely the proud people of Victoria can do better.

Alternatives range from simple very inexpensive bullrush ponds which suck up virtually everything from nutrients in human waste to some heavy metals (which shouldn't be) in industrial waste, and in the former case may be harvested and made into paper, to employment generating systems which tap off methane (for this energy-hungry world) and render both the water clean and the solids highly saleable, odorless and nutritious compost.

A conserver society utilizes its resources and wastes or destroys none! Let us truly become civilized! — Robert T. Allen, Victoria.

Harangue of abuse

I was appalled and incensed by the proceedings at Wednesday's Conference Center Public Hearing at City Hall. A great many Victorians presented reasoned, sincerely held opinions, both pro and con, and they should be commended for their participation.

However, a vitriolic few, self-appointed guardians of Lord knows what, seemingly held together only by their objection to everything, and enamoured of the sound of their own voices, subjected mayor, council, and assembled citizens to an endless harangue of abuse, innuendo, inaccuracy and irrelevancy.

Is this a necessary part of the process! I do not believe so. — R.W. Siddall, 1960 Woodley Road.

A better word

On your front page a CP report on Terry Fox and his run across Canada refers to him as "awkward". Surely you could find a better word to describe his efforts such as "valiant" or "courageous".

I ask you, why is the press, your paper included, so negative and destructive rather than positive and uplifting. — M. Neve, 4345 Gordon Head Road.

Victoria Landmarks

The B.C. Ferry system made its inaugural runs between Vancouver Island and the mainland on June 15, 1960, with two new motor vessels, Sidney and Tsawwassen. The senior masters were the late Capt. Thomas Parkinson and Capt. B. G. K. Owen-Jones respectively.

It was Amor de Cosmos, B.C.'s energetic second premier, who originated the idea of a fast ferry crossing from Shoal Bay, near Swartz Bay, to Tsawwassen Beach (English Bluff). In 1888, he formed the Saanich and New Westminster Railway and Ferry Company confident that the entire journey from Victoria to Vancouver would take less than two hours.

H. O. Bell-Irving, the distinguished civil engineer, made cost studies and estimated that two ships, a breakwater at English Bluff, a total of forty miles of railway, and a bridge over the Fraser River would cost $2.5 million. Unfortunately, the scheme failed when the City of Victoria would not guarantee the stock.

In 1903, the Victorian became the first passenger ferry over a similar route, Sidney to Liverpool, near New Westminster. However, the ship lost the company an average of $8,000 per month and was withdrawn the following year.

Seven vessels now run between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen, and Capt. B. G. K. Owen-Jones is retired and living in Vancouver.

Retronyms

A new form of compound word has been created to help old words avoid technological displacement.

Consider the word "guitar." In olden times, you could play a Spanish guitar or a Hawaiian guitar, but your instrument was accurately denoted by the single word "guitar."

Along came the electric guitar. No longer could you say, "He plays the guitar," for fear of being immediately asked, "What kind — the electric guitar or the old-fashioned guitar?" Since people do not like to be old-fashioned, especially in the music world, players of "regular," or non-electric, guitars have come to call their instruments "acoustic guitars."

Similarly, "natural turf" is the phrase now being used by sportscasters to differentiate that old-fashioned field from "artificial turf." Another word for natural turf is "grass"; we can soon expect all signs to read: "Keep off the natural turf."

Frank Mankiewicz, president of National Public Radio, collects these terms and calls them "retronyms" — nouns that have taken an adjective to stay up-to-date and to fend off newer terms.

Other retronyms include "hard-cover book," which was merely a "book" before the soft-cover book came along; "manual transmission," which used to be the "gearshift" before "automatic transmission" became popular; "fresh squeezed orange juice," which we called "orange juice," or "O.J.," before the frozen variety, sometimes slyly called "fresh frozen orange juice," grabbed the mass market; and "stage play," which was legitimately called only a "play" until "television play" forced it to take "stage" as a modifier. (A stage play is a "live performance," with the "live" added after the onslaught of "recorded," or even "prerecorded," performances.)

A special category of retronyms is used to defend words from a more general obsolescence: "real cream," for example, is the name of the cow-produced liquid that is not your usual nondairy creamer; "roast coffee," which is neither instant nor freeze-dried, and "natural food," which is not fast and has no preservatives added.

Thank you, Mr. Mankiewicz; but I am still a devotee of private radio.

Hassle hustle

" 'Hassle' is a gorgeously descriptive word," wrote The Saturday Evening Post in 1946, "which lately has won wide usage in show business." A year earlier, Down Beat magazine used the word to mean "arguments" and spelled it "hassel."

The noun became part of the protest movement of the '60s, and took on a verb shape meaning "to annoy, harass, beat up on, make life difficult for." The verb "to bother" was overwhelmed.

As pushing around persisted, so did the word, and it is now firmly placed in most dictionaries. Both Merriam-Webster and American Heritage speculate that the word may have come from a combination of "haggle" and "tussle"; that seems farfetched to me. Thorndike-Barnhart's World Book Dictionary guesses at a derivation from a Southern dialect verb, "to hassel," meaning "to pant, to breathe noisily," but my tongue isn't hanging out over that one, either.

"Hassle's" origin is a mystery, which is a pity because the coinage is recent and the word is in the process of spreading its meaning over another popular new verb. Leslie Sawyer of the RKO Radio Network sent me this Associated Press dispatch, which was filed from the island of St. Martin: "Rolling Stones guitarist Ron Wood and his girlfriend (a term The New York Times stylebook says to "avoid wherever possible") have been deported from this Caribbean island after spending five days in jail when police found cocaine in their apartment. 'I think we were victims of a hassle,' said Wood just before leaving for California . . . "

The meaning of "hassle" in that use seems to have gained an additional overtone of "deception, ploy, trick, frame-up" — in other words, to have merged part way with the noun "hustle." The old slang verb "to hustle" — "to gain money dishonestly, as by prostitution" — includes a meaning of "jostle or shove" which intrudes upon the meaning of "hassle." In effect, "hassle" is being hustled.

This merger of hassle ("to harass") and hustle ("to defraud") should be resisted. Each lively locution should stand alone. Hustlers and hasslers alike should guard against pollution of the one by the other.

The Lexicographic Irregulars are urged to plumb the etymologies of these terms of the subculture; the earliest known use of "hustling" as "robbery" was tracked by the Oxford English Dictionary to 1751. Research, especially on "hassel" in the South, is called for.

Letters complaining about wastes of time, or berating me for dignifying the substandard, are not solicited; we know what they are.

Ending with 'gry'

Everybody in the language dodge gets a query, sooner or later, from a member of a strange cult dedicated to driving crazy the members of the language dodge.

The seemingly innocent question these cultists ask is: "Aside from 'angry' and 'hungry,' is there another word in the dictionary that ends in 'gry'?" They usually add — as does headhunter Dianne Hanson, of Stamford, Conn., this week's cultist — "A friend assures me that there is; she can't remember it and I can't conjure it up."

It's a hoax, designed to provoke hours of useless brain-racking. Lexicographer David Guralnik, editor of Simon & Schuster's Webster's New World Dictionary, gets hundreds of these queries, and replies that there are no other "native English words" ending in "gry." Here are three imports:

Puggry, more often spelled "puggree," occassionally "puck-ery," is a noun for an Indian turban or head covering, and is also a useful word used to denote the scarf wound around a sun helmet and falling down behind to shade the neck. (Wear your puggry, Beau Geste, or you'll get a neckburn.)

Mawgry is the state of being regarded with displeasure. The word comes from the Old French "maugre"; in English, "mauger" means "ill will." If you are afflicted by mauger, you're maugry. It's obsolete; forget it.

Aggry, also spelled "aggri," to assure readers they have not read a typo for "angry," is the word to describe colored glass beads worn by Africans, thought to be of ancient Egyptian manufacture.

That's three. No follow-ups permitted. If you're hungry to be angry, cultists, you can flap your puggry over your aggry and stand around mawgry.

Playing games with politics

By CHRISTOPHER BRASHER

(Brasher is a former British Olympic runner who now writes a regular sports column for The Observer of London)

MOSCOW — It is time to get my backside off the fence and forget the conventions: that Fleet Street dog does not eat Fleet Street dog; and that when in a foreign country you do not attack your own government or indeed that of a friendly power. But there are certain facts that lead me to exclaim, as Lord Killanin did the other day: "God help us."

Those facts are that the Western powers have bungled this Olympic affair; that the two countries which contain Madison Avenue and Berkely Square, the homes of the advertising industry, have been out-manoeuvred by Moscow; and that the British press, here and at home, are playing a dangerous game.

It all comes to five letters — or six, depending on which side of the Iron Curtain you live — the five letters which spell Truth in English, or the six letters which serve for the same elusive concept in Russian; Pravda.

Let me give you two simple examples from the first visit I made to this city, 25 years ago. I flew in from Scandinavia with Chris Chataway, a few days in advance of the first British athletic team to compete against the U.S.S.R. in Moscow. We spent most of our time in the company of 'Lera' (short for Valerie), a 22-year-old interpreter. Every evening over dinner we tried to find some flaw in her Communist dogma.

Every discussion with her eventually came up against the brick wall of facts. She believed one thing, and we believed another. We soon learned that argument was useless, and more usefully spent our time by finding out how a Russian of her generation lived and thought.

She thought that we in the West were inviting another world war by rearming Western Germany, by bringing them into NATO. "We have had the Germans on the doorstep of Moscow," said Lera. "And we know how dangerous they are."

That was in 1955, just 13 years after the German army had indeed been within sight of Moscow. Now, in 1980, my colleague David Hunn had a similar, gentle argument with another young female interpreter, and the subject this time was Afghanistan. He wanted to know what she thought of the Russian invasion of Afghanistan. "We were invited in," she said, "to help the Afghans who were being . . ." and she searched for the right word ". . . skinned by Pakistan."

What you're told

It is, you see, not a question of the truth, but what you believe to be the truth, and what you believe is based on what you are told by your government, or what your read, or see, in the media. Here, in Russia the government, TV and press all tell their citizens the same 'truth', and they make certain that their 'truth' gets through to their citizens. Newspapers do not have to worry about their own economics — Pravda costs only three kopeks (5 cents), and contains little advertising — but our newspapers do have to worry, and one way to economic success is to tell your readers what they want to know, and to propagate a line which attracts the advertisers.

Now there is no doubt that many readers in Britain, and the majority of advertisers, want to hear that the Russians are not fair-minded, that they bend the Olympic rules to suit their own propaganda purposes, and that they are making a mess of organizing these Games. And that is what some British journalists have been ordered, by their editors, to give you, the readers. In the blunt words used in Fleet Street offices, they have been told to "give us knocking copy."

That to my mind is playing straight into the hands of the Russians in the fight for the hearts and minds of the people of the world.

Our most priceless asset — denied to the Russians — is the freedom to dissent, the freedom to find out the facts for ourselves, either by travelling the world or by reading the news and views put out by those who, in our experience, have told us the truth — as far as it is possible for anybody to grasp that elusive concept.

I am not going to give you the truth about Afghanistan, because I am not in that country, but I can give you the truth about these Olympic Games which have become embroiled in the war over Afghanistan. And the truth is that in all essential respects, the Russians have not put a foot wrong.

On the material side, they have provided everybody concerned with everything they need to do the job they came here to do. The athletes have the most comfortable — and quiet — living quarters that I have ever seen and this is my 13th Olympics — eight summer, five winter. The food and the training facilities are unrivalled: indeed, there is nothing to criticize except for the excessive security which is one stage more restrictive than in Montreal, but then Montreal was many stages more restrictive than Games of my experience.

'Everything by the book'

Indeed, the only thing that baffles me is why, in a country with massive security on its borders, it is necessary to check and search everybody coming into, and going out of, every Olympic facility. The other night I left the secure area of the main Press Centre, climbed on to a press bus in a guarded yard, was driven a couple of miles to the guarded press hotel, was peered at three times to ensure that my face fitted the picture on my pass, and had my bag X-rayed, and then searched because my binoculars and tape recorder showed up as black and potentially threatening objects on the screen.

Like the athletes, we pressmen have every facility we need to do our work: a comfortable hotel, an efficient transport system, and a Press Centre which is the most spacious and effective work place I have ever come across. And it is the same for the international officials and the members of the IOC: everything we all need except the essential freedom. And that is not entirely true: I can go and mull over the events of the week with a long-time and wise member of the IOC, but only after the most tremendous hassle to get into his hotel; an athlete of one country can visit a friend from another country in his room, but only after a succession of telephone calls and with the correct pass — correct in every detail. Such tiresome regulations inevitably restrict the freedom of communication which is such an essential feature of the Olympic idea.

The Russians are also abiding by the letter and the spirit of the Olympic charter. Everything has been done exactly according to the book, and they are also showing great sensitivity about people's feelings.

'System stinks'

If I praise all that I see here, it does not mean that I have altered my view that the system stinks — and I do not mean the Olympic system, I mean the Communist system.

In 1955, when Chris Chataway and I were here, Russia and Moscow were just emerging from the tyrannical reign of Stain, and that, we thought, would expose the chinks in the armor of their faith. But after three hours' exhaustive argument with a universty lecturer, he exploded back at us and said: — "You in the West do not understand: you cannot understand for you do not comprehend our state in 1917. If a group — of, say, 100 people — are without clothes, without food, without shelter, they decided on a course of action to obtain these necessities. If 10 of that group oppose, actively or passively, that plan the need of the 90 is so great that they must, without delay, override those 10."

Savage repression

But now, 25 years later, they have clothes and food and shelter, and yet the 90 still override the 10 with savage repression, because authority here is afraid of freedom. So let us not continue to make mistakes with our freedom.

Let us not have editors who restrict the freedom of their correspondents; let us not have a government which restricts the freedom of speech of those in its pay as the Ministry of Defence has done to the servicemen in the British team; let us not have a government which uses every means possible to try to stop its citizens from attending a festival that is based on the idea that it is important for the youth of the world to gather together with a common purpose.

Above all, let us have the freedom to discover the elusive truth for ourselves. And I, like Lord Killanin, have discovered one truth in these past six months of argument: that the governments of the United States and of Britain have not understood the Olympic movement, nor how international sport is governed and organised. The Russians have understood. If this applies to other, more important, matters of the world, then I can only echo Lord Killanin's words: "God help us."

Opening lead — five of hearts.

It's always darkest before dawn, goes the old saying, and often a declarer strikes a dark point during the early play that precedes his ultimate step towards victory.

For example, consider this deal which occurred in the final round of the 1977 world championship. The bidding went as shown when Billy Eisenberg, Los Angeles star and a key member of the eventually victorious American team, got to six clubs.

West did not have a clear-cut opening lead and, after great thought, he elected to lead the five of hearts. This did not turn out well after Eisenberg won the heart lead with the eight, cashed the K-A of spades, and then ruffed the jack of spades in dummy.

Eisenberg now played the A-K of trumps, West showing out, and it appeared that eventually he would have to lose a diamond trick and a trump trick and go down one. But Eisenberg, never one to give up without a struggle, proceeded to make the slam anyhow.

He abandoned further trump leads at this juncture and, instead, proceeded to set the stage for a trump coup. Eisenberg played his queen of hearts, covered by the king and ace, then ruffed a heart, played a diamond to the ace, and ruffed another heart. As a result of this trump-reducing procedure, he now had only three cards left — the Q-9 of trumps and eight of diamonds. East's last three cards consisted of the J-6 of trumps and king of diamonds.

Eisenberg then exited with the eight of diamonds, not at all concerned with whether East or West would win the trick. In either case he was certain to win the last two tricks with the Q-9 of trumps and thus make the slam.

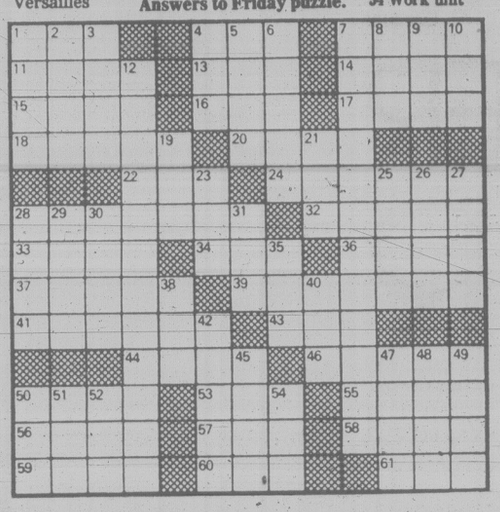
Answers to Friday puzzle.



Bolivia miners stay out

ORURO, Bolivia (Reuter) — Thousands of Bolivian miners Sunday continued a 10-day-old strike of resistance to the country's military rulers.

Miners, who managed to elude a siege by the military to buy supplies in this Andean city 288 kilometres south of La Paz, said most of the country's 50,000 miners are prepared to extend the strike indefinitely.

"We continue on a general strike," a spokesman of the miners. "We need food and suffer from hunger, but we do not lack courage to continue our struggle."

At least seven people have been reported killed and 15 injured in clashes since soldiers supported by armored units and reconnaissance planes marched to the area after the overthrow of President Lidia Gueiler.

Roman Catholic priests working in the area said roadblocks set up by the soldiers have prevented them from going back to their parishes in Catavi, Siglo Veinte, Llallagua and Huanani, four major tin-producing centres isolated by the siege.

Church leaders condemned the violence sweeping Bolivia since the military regime seized power two weeks ago.

Meanwhile, sources said the nation's leading opposition politician has formed an underground government.

Friends of Hernan Siles Zuazo, the apparent winner of last month's presidential elections, said the 67-year-old politician formed the left-center underground government while in hiding in the capital.

They said a ministerial council has been appointed, and ambassadors under former President Lidia Gueiler have been asked to represent the government abroad.

Siles Zuazo's government is backed by the Popular Democratic Unity, a coalition of three left-center parties, including the Communist Party, that gave him 39 percent of the votes in the June 29 election.

Robbers hit McDonald's

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP said a man and woman bound and gagged three employees and took a small amount of money from a McDonald's restaurant early today.

Two janitors were confronted by the pair at about 5:30 a.m. They were tied up and tossed into a storage room. Police said the man had a handgun.

A female employee arrived about 30 minutes later and was also tied up and placed in a staff room.

A fourth employee arriving for work was also confronted by the man and woman but she managed to escape and tell police.

Police, fearing there was a hostage-taking, cordoned off the area. After determining there was no hostage-taking, police searched the restaurant and found only the tied-up employees. They were not injured. The amount of money stolen was not known.

Busline staff 'torture'

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Employees of a bus company kidnapped and tortured 20 people, including children, in a weekend of terror to force them to accept a small liability payment for a fatal accident, authorities said today. One person was killed and the others were seriously injured.

A spokesman for the Mexico City prosecutor's office said the families of four people killed in a bus accident last week were invited by the bus company involved to a meeting Friday night to discuss the indemnity.

He said 20 people, including several children, went to the meeting place, where they were attacked by eight men.

The men locked up the family members for three days and tortured them, the spokesman said, to force them to accept an $8,700 indemnity payment.

One person was beaten to death and the others were seriously injured, the spokesman said.

Police Department spokesman Arturo Gonzalez said several of the captives were forced to ingest poison. He declined to say if any arrests were made.

A Red Cross spokesman said ambulances were sent to a Mexico City building Sunday night after neighbors heard people calling for help.

The 19 survivors of the two-day ordeal were rushed to a Mexico City hospital, he said.

Blacks aim to close city

JOHANNESBURG, (UPI) — Black city workers, protesting the dismissal of some 1,400 black employees at two power plants, threatened to bring South Africa's largest city to a standstill today by going on strike.

The threat of a black worker walkout crippling the nation's commercial center followed a weekend of violence in the Eastern Cape city of Grahamstown, where police killed two blacks and another was stoned to death by a mob Saturday night.

About 9,000 black employees of the Johannesburg city council threatened to walk off their jobs following the dismissal of 1,400 black workers at two power plants in the city over a pay dispute.

City officials said the strike could spread to many key services, bringing the city to a grinding halt.

The workers were demanding a pay increase from an average of $42.90 per week to $75.40 per week.

"I'm sure we will get by no matter what the blacks decide," said Elizabeth Pearson, a white resident of the city. "Maybe we will have to do something for ourselves for a change."

Police firing shotguns killed two black men in a township near Grahamstown late Saturday night and a third man was stoned to death as rioters went on an orgy of burning and looting in the quiet university town, 450 miles south of Johannesburg.

At least two high schools were burned to the ground along with several government buildings.

Syrian fingered

ANTWERP, Belgium (UPI) — An Arab travelling on a false passport threw two grenades into a tour group outside an Orthodox Jewish home, killing a 15-year-old boy and injuring 13 others, one critically.

The alleged assailant identified himself as Abdel Wahid, a 25-year-old Syrian travelling with a false Moroccan passport, police sources said.

He was chased and caught by neighbors and police following the twin blasts Sunday, believed to be the first attack on the large Jewish community of the north Belgian port.

Dalhousie Cottage a Maclure design

On my noon hour walks I pass a house on Meares Street called Dalhousie Cottage. There is a heritage plaque on the gate. Can you please tell me something of its history, who built it, how did it get its name, etc.?

One of Samuel Maclure's early designs, this house at 941 Meares was built around 1906. The city's directory of heritage homes, This Old House, says Dalhousie Cottage combines several styles Maclure tried to bring together in his early years as an architect in Victoria.

They include Tudor half-timbering, the low profile of the colonial bungalow and picturesque qualities of the Alpine chalet.

"The house has been restored, with painstaking attention to detail, both exterior and interior, along with the garden," says the book.

W. Warburton, an accountant with Windsor Gardens, was the first owner.

Tom Palfrey, a Provincial Museum employee, bought the house three years ago and carried out the restoration, although he says there's still a lot of work to be done inside. Concerning the name of the house, Palfrey has never discovered why it was called Dalhousie Cottage. Neighbors told him the little sign was always there.

Beer Strike? Do it yourself

What's brewing on home front?

By AB KENT

Let the big breweries lock their doors.

Beer drinkers can go home and tap a more reliable source.

Home brewing in Victoria and other parts of North America is the coming thing, as supplier-author Desmond Lundy has found in the 10 years he has operated Fermenthaus.

Even without the current scarcity of commercial beer through labor-management difficulties, Lundy's shop has seen a steady growth of business supplying ingredients, materials and equipment for making many different kinds of beer.

He estimates beer-makers provided only 4 per cent of his trade compared with wine-makers a decade ago. Today his beer business constitutes 75 per cent.

Since 1970 he has seen a 50 per cent growth in wine-makers, but 25 times as many beer-makers.

At Betty Schenck's Wine Arts store the proportion of beer-makers to winemakers has stayed about even, but more sales of beer items is anticipated.

The threat of a beer strike has only begun to show up in Lundy's shop, but is likely to increase with warmer weather.

He expects to sell a 200-litre (45-gallon) drum of concentrated, unfermented wort every two to three weeks for the rest of the summer.

Each barrel makes 20,000 bottles of beer, or 1,750 dozen.

But it will not all be sold locally or in B.C. because Lundy's store is a principal North American importer and supplies retailers in Washington, Oregon, California, New York, New Jersey, Virginia, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Michigan.

He claims to be the only importer of appreciable volumes of European malt and hops, which he has made to formula, then bottles and labels them himself.

He has written Beers, a standard guide for handmade brews, and Liesure Winemaking, both clearly detailed references for the amateur.

Lundy has advice for the panic-stricken, would-be home brewer:

If you think you can rush out, spend a few dollars on equipment and brew up next week's beer over the weekend — forget it. Even bad beer can't be made in five days, he said.

"Beer can't be hurried. But a respectable beer can be made in seven weeks, and it continues to improve in the bottle, even four or five years."

Not that many people would want to wait that long. But contrary to a common belief, beer, like wine, may get better with time.

For $40 a home brewer following directions can made his first five cases of beer, choosing from American lager, Munchen lager, Irish brown ale, English pale ale, German export, stout, Irish chocolate (so called because of its color and character), weissbiers, kalja or kvass, the latter made from malted rye, barley or wheat.

Lundy said the types which can be made are endless. It's something like cheese-making. Purists will not buy the concentrates but grind their own grain and boil up their own mash and hops.

And the taste, they claim, is worth the trouble. It also is cheap, something like $6 for succeeding five-case lots after the first batch.

Even championship beer makers, like Robin McNeil of Saanich and Thomas Robinson of Vancouver — both supplied by Lundy — use only about $150 worth of equipment.

They have been competing for about eight years and have won prizes at regional, provincial and dominion homebrew trials, both specializing in ales and stout.

"The public today wants a wholesome, well-tended process," Lundy said. They are willing to obtain proper ingredients, follow directions closely and use the right equipment.

This means a quality plastic primary fermenter (not a plastic garbage pail) which will not impair the yeast action or allow polyvinylchloride to get into the brew.

It means using good malt, good hops and good yeast.

It means using glass secondary fermenters, airlocks, clean glass bottles (cappable soft drink, champagne or beer bottles) and patience.

GETTING AROUND is easy if you aren't disabled, but for those using crutches and wheelchairs or the blind, getting around downtown Victoria can be a threat to life and limb. Here Doug Ottenbreit begins a jaunt through The Empress Hotel's front yard to scout for hazards, kicking off a two-week campaign by the B.C. Coalition of the Disabled to alert government, businesses and the public to problems that hamper disabled persons' mobility. Volunteers will put stickers on stairways, branches that overhang sidewalks and other potential hazards. If you want to experience one problem, just try selecting the correct elevator button with your eyes closed.

Injured climber rescued

Seven Langford volunteer firefighters and a Colwood RCMP officer rescued a Colwood man from near the summit of Mount Finlayson Sunday.

Ronald Bailey, 30, of Rainville Road, apparently slipped on some loose stones while walking the trail on the mountain's southwest side. He suffered fractures to the ankle and lower leg.

Langford firefighters, led by Chief Al Le Quesne, drove up the east slope of the mountain in a four-wheel drive rescue vehicle.

Gordie Johnston, a paramedic with the provincial Emergency Health Services and a volunteer firefighter, secured Bailey's leg and ankle so he could be moved by basket stretcher to a nearby rescue vehicle.

Bailey was then driven about 400 yards down the mountain to an RCMP helicopter which took him to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Bailey is reported today in fairly good condition.

Regal time for Que. students

Twenty-five students from Quebec will enjoy some vice-regal hospitality Thursday.

The students, working in the B.C. public service for the summer as part of an exchange program with Quebec, will be at Government House for a swim party and barbecue.

The next day, Lieut.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving and Mrs. Bell-Irving will board a Canadian armed forces plane in Vancouver to fly to Cyprus where they will visit the 3rd. Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Causeway bus battle flares

The so-called "war of the tour buses" on the Causeway today turned into a battle of words and a struggle for parking space as one operator hogged half the slots.

City hall has threatened — once again — to force all the companies off Government in front of The Empress if they can't keep the peace.

A Gray Lines official said he hoped the companies could sort things out themselves. A meeting is scheduled for Wednesday at which principals of the four bus companies would discuss the problem, he said.

This morning, all of the tour companies had buses circling the block at one point or other, waiting to slide into the curb the moment one pulled out with a fresh load of tourists.

Some had been going around the hotel four or five times before a spot opened up.

Jim Gorst, owner of Marguerite Tours, had four doubledecker buses in front of the hotel on Government while competing Gray Lines and Conmac Stage Lines had room for only two.

The usually talkative former MLA for Esquimalt wouldn't comment on the dispute and was angry when a reporter asked him about the dispute.

"It's a nice sunny day," he snapped. "No comment."

The Gray Lines man said there were too many companies competing for the summer business and he resented the fact the other companies were only there when the tourist season hit a peak.

"We're here 12 months of the year providing a service. These guys are just out for July and August," he said, referring to Marguerite Tours and Conmac, the newcomer in the field.

It seemed to be an ironic situation for Gorst. Four years ago when he set up his own tour bus firm, he was the loudest complainer about the established companies freezing out the newcomers from the limited parking space available.

Mayor Bill Tindall said on the weekend he is ready to clear the Causeway of all buses as the ultimate solution.

It's a threat the city has been making for nearly a decade. The last time was 1977 when Marguerite Tours appeared on the scene. Then there were five companies with about 100 buses competing for the six parking slots on Government.

The problem appeared to go away on its own, but a recent decision by the provincial government awarding tour operator's licences to Conmac — which recently lost its airport service — and another firm has revived the old grievances.

Illegitimate births up 17%

The number of illegitimate births in B.C. increased 17 per cent last year, according to the annual report of the provincial health ministry.

The report says illegitimate births accounted for 15.5 per cent of all live births — a record.

Health Minister Rafe Mair says a program to combat unwanted pregnancies is more urgent than ever. He has a proposal before the treasury board which he hopes will soon be approved.

He says he can't reveal details at this time.

Earlier this year Mair said a community education drive would probably be an effective means of countering the trend toward increased teenaged pregnancies.

The latest report also shows venereal diseases also rose in 1979, with the gonorrhea rate climbing from 355.9 cases per 100,000 in 1978 to 365.8 per 100,000.

Heart afflictions remained the leading cause of death in B.C. Cancer, the second biggest killer, continued to take an ever higher number of victims. The 1979 rate for all types of cancer was 164 deaths per 100,000, compared with 160 per 100,000 in 1978.

Furnace blast clears hotel

Guests at the James Bay Inn at 270 Government were evacuated Sunday evening when a blowback on the oil-fired furnace created a lot of smoke.

After the fire department checked out the heating system, guests were allowed to return.

Assistant manager Don McGee ordered the evacuation and although it proved unnecessary, a fire department official termed it a good move.

Company Reports

Pacific Northern

Pacific Northern Gas Ltd. has reported net income for the first six months of 1980 was $1,054,357 or 66 cents a share, compared with $957,153 or 60 cents a share in the same period last year.

Pacific Northern said in a news release revenue was $12.3 million compared with $11.6 million in 1979.

Northern Telcom

Northern Telecom Inc. of Montreal blames poor sales by its computer division, heavy start-up costs for a new line of digital switching systems and accounting changes at its U.S. operations for a 98-per-cent drop in profit for the second quarter of 1980.

Profit fell to $716,000, or two cents per share, compared to $31.3 million, or $1.06 a share, for the second quarter of 1979, based on a smaller number of shares, the company, a Bell Canada subsidiary, reported.

However, sales rose to $561 billion from $530 million.

For the first six months of 1980, profit fell 56 per cent to $25 million, or 74 cents per share, down from $56.3 million, or $1.90 a share, a year earlier. Sales rose to $1.046 billion from $952 million.

Consolidated Bathurst

Higher prices and higher shipments of newsprint and other products pushed second-quarter profit of Consolidated-Bathurst Inc. of Montreal up 34 per cent to $32.2 million, or $1.44 a share, from $24 million, or $1.05 a share, a year earlier.

Sales rose 20 per cent to $362 million from $303 million, the company said.

For the six months ended June 30, profit rose 49 per cent to $63.6 million, or $2.83 a share, from $42.7 million, or $1.85 a share, in the same period of 1979. Sales rose 21 per cent to $702 million from $582 million.

MacBlo

A weak market for building materials in the United States was blamed for a slight drop in first-half earnings for MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

The largest forest products firm in British Columbia announced net earnings for the period ending June 30 of $82.3 million on sales and other income of $1.27 billion, compared with earnings of $90.5 million on revenue of $1.13 billion for the same period in 1979.

The company said in a statement that cash flow from operations increased to $149.8 million for the first half, up from $142.5 million for the same period last year. Capital and investment expenditures were $165 million, up from $92 million in 1979.

Calvert Knudsen, chairman and chief executive officer, said MacMillan Bloedel has developed a capital expenditure plan for 1981 to 1985 totalling $2 billion.

"Of the new $2-billion total, $1.2 billion is earmarked for capital projects in British Columbia," Knudsen said.

Pine Point

Pine Point Mines Ltd. has reported unaudited net earnings for the six months ended June 30 dropped to $11.7 million or $2.58 a share on sales of $50 million.

This compares with net earnings of $22.7 million or $5.03 a share on sales of $72.8 million during the corresponding period last year.

The downturn in the United States economy, particularly in the automotive sector, resulted in lower lead prices, which together with reduced sales volumes of lead and zinc concentrates account for the decrease in earnings, the company said.

FirstCity

FirstCity Trust has reported net income increased 27 per cent to $4.35 million for the six months ended June 30 compared with $3.4 million for the corresponding period in 1979.

President A. H. Jeffrey said earnings increased 41 per cent to $2.95 a share compared with $2.09.

Beth Copper

Bethlehem Copper Corp. reports a second-quarter downturn, but first-half earnings for the period ended June 30 were $5.7 million on revenues of $32.2 million, compared with $4.4 million on $24.5 million for the same period in 1979.

Second quarter earnings of $1.5 million on revenue of $10.4 million, compared with $1.6 million on income of $9.2 million for the same period in 1979.

The company will pay a dividend of 15 cents a share, payable Sept. 15 to shareholders of record on Sept. 1, plus an extra dividend of 10 cents a share.

Placer

Placer Development Ltd. has reported consolidated earnings of $49.3 million or $1.39 a share for the six months ended June 30 before an extraordinary gain of $8 million for sale of its share in Northern Cattle Co. Pty. Ltd. of Australia.

This compares with $36.4 million or $1 a share during the correspondiing period last year before an extraordinary gain of $38.6 million.

Texaco split

Texaco Canada Inc. has announced its shareholders approved a four-for-one split of this company's issued common shares.

The board of directors recommended the split June 20, saying the action would create a broader market for the shares.

The split will add 90,407,268 shares to the number previously outstanding for a total of 120,543,024. Another 227,424 shares will be reserved by the company for issuance upon conversion of first preferred shares.

The additional outstanding shares will be mailed on or about August 25 to shareholders of record at the close of business August 15.

Hudson's Bay Oil

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. has reported net earnings of $68.7 million for the first six months of 1980, up 12.3 per cent from $61.2 million in the corresponding period last year.

Net earnings per common share, after an adjustment for a recent four-for-one share split, were 90.5 cents compared with 80.6 in 1979.

G. J. Maier, chairman and chief executive officer, said funds generated from operations were $148.8 million, up 25 per cent from $118.9 million from the first half of the previous year.

Hudson's Bay said second-quarter sales of natural gas were 319.6 million cubic feet a day, 25 per cent lower than in the same quarter in 1979.

Texaco

Texaco Canada Inc. reports net income of $182.5 million in the first six months of this year, up 82 per cent from $100.8 million in the similar 1979 period.

That was equal to $5.70 a share, compared with $2.99 a year ago.

Gross income for the first half of this year totalled $1.7 billion, up from $1.2 billion a year ago.

Chairman R. W. Sparks said the improved earnings resulted from a firming trend in product prices — meaning prices were higher for consumers.

Westcoast Transmission

Westcoast Transmission has reported net income of $25,351,000 in the first six months of 1980, up slightly from last year's $24,381,000 in the corresponding period last year.

The Vancouver-based firm said net income applicable to common shares, after provision for preferred share dividends, was $23,757,000 or 67 cents a share, compared with $22,681,000 or 65 cents a year earlier.

Total revenues increased 32 percent to $669,084,000 from $504,808,000 despite a sharp drop in gas sales volume to the United States.

Dividends totalling $1.50 a share have been paid to date in 1980.

Gibraltar

Higher copper prices and sales of copper and molybdenum resulted in improved net earnings for Gibraltar Mines Ltd. during the first half of the year.

The company reports earnings of $20.1 million or $1.76 a share for the six months ended June 30, up from $6.8 million or 60 cents in the same period last year when operations were impeded by a strike.

Revenues were $58.7 million, up from $25.3 million a year earlier. Dividends totalling $1.50 a share have been paid so far this year.

Lornex

Higher prices for copper, silver and molybdenum were also cited by Lornex Mining Corp. Ltd., for first-half earnings of more than $41 million for the year ended June 30, compared with just over $15 million for the first six months of 1979.

Net revenue from mine production was almost $100 million, an increase of $35 million over the same period last year.

Copper production remained at 1979 levels but molybdenum production was 62 per cent higher this year because of improved grades and recoveries, the company said in a news release.

Electrohome

Electrohome Ltd. of Kitchener, which manufacturers appliances and industrial equipment, announced its earnings rose in the first half and retiring chairman James Holmes said the company's turnaround has been achieved.

Net income for the first half ended June 27 climbed to $2.1 million or 59 cents a share before extraordinary items from $1.1 million or 31 cents a share in the first half of 1979.

Extraordinary items, including tax gains due to the application of losses carried forward from previous years and recovery of deferred taxes resulting from an amalgamation of the parent company and its subsidiaries, pushed earnings to $5.1 million or $1.43 a share compared with $1.7 million or 48 cents a share last year.

Inco

Inco Ltd. of Toronto said the effects of the North American recession cut its second-quarter earnings to less than half of what the company earned in the first quarter.

Net income fell to $46.1 million (U.S.) or 53 cents a share from $97.5 million or $1.21 a share in the first quarter.

In the second quarter of last year, when earnings were affected by an 8½-month strike at mining operations in Sudbury, Ont., which ended June 3, 1979, net income was $16 million or 13 cents a share.

Occidental Pete

Canadian Occidental Petroleum has announced revenues for the half year ending June 30 showed an increase of 67 percent to $91,834,000, up from 1979 revenues of $55,087,000.

Net income was up 96 percent at $15,828,000 from $8,096,000 the previous year, the company said Wednesday, and net earnings per common share, after deducting preferred share dividends, were 69 cents, compared to 29 cents in 1979.

It said cash flow from operations was $36,498,000 or $1.70 per common share as compared to $11,518,000 or 46 cents per common share in 1979.

A quarterly dividend payable Oct. 1, of 7 ½ cents a common share was declared by the board of directors, with a 63 cent dividend to be issued on the same date to holders of 10 percent class A preferred shares.

Earnings

Bell Canada, for six months ended June 30: 1980, $158.9 million, 88 cents a share; 1979, $222.2 million, $1.33 a share.

Shell Canada Ltd., six months ended June 30: 1980, $181,500,000, $1.71 a share; 1979, $106,500,000, 99 cents a share.

Alta. gas sales drop reported

EDMONTON (CP) Natural gas sales for the first six months of 1980 were 208.2 billion cubic feet, down from 217.7 billion cubic feet in 1979, Canadian Utilities Ltd. says.

The company — a subsidiary of Atco Ltd. which is attempting to take over Calgary Power Ltd. — said in a prepared statement that the sales' reduction reflected a comparatively milder winter and spring this year and fluctuations in industrial use.

Moreover, Canadian Utilities Ltd. says earnings are being adversely affected by increases in operating costs. Each of the company's major utility subsidiaries — Alberta Power Ltd., Northwestern Utilities Ltd. and Canadian Western Natural Gas Ltd. — applied during the second quarter to the Alberta Public Utilities Board for interim rate increases.

The board has delayed a decision on Alberta Power's application for $9.1 million in additional revenues in 1980 while it re-examines the company's method of income tax accounting because of recent changes in the federal Income Tax Transfer Act.

Another for Nina

MONTREAL — Nina Bland of Victoria made it two provincial titles in a week Saturday when she captured the women's singles crown in the Quebec Open tennis tournament.

After a 6-0, 6-7, 6-2 semi-final victory over Victoria rival Wendy Barlow, Nina defeated Angela Walker of Toronto, recent winner of the Canadian under-21 title, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3 in the final. Walker had ousted Nina's sister, Jennifer Bland, 6-2, 6-2 in the semi-finals.

The previous Sunday, Nina captured the Ontario Open crown. Today, the Victorians were scheduled to begin play in the national championships at Ottawa.

Pat takes pair

BELLINGHAM — Pat Wellman chalked up a pair of victories and several of her Victoria Flying Y clubmates earned second and third-place awards during the weekend at the Northwest Washington Strider International and Northwest Classic track and field meets.

Wellman won both the 800 metres — in 2 minutes, 13.6 seconds — and the 1,500 metres — in 4:39.9 — in the 15 and 16-year-old girls' division.

Among 10-and-under girls, Marsha Griffith was second in the 800 and second in the 1,500. Sister Fiona Griffith was third in the 400 metres for girls aged 13 and 14.

The Flying Y girls were third in the 800-metre medley relay for 13 and 14 year olds.

In boys' events, Don Ball was second in the 15 and 16-year-old pole vault event with a leap of 3.50 metres, Vito Morra was third in the long jump for 13 and 14-year-olds and Mark Dornan was second in the triple jump for the same group.

Burnaby wins two

Times News Services

Burnaby Cablevision captured two games in the Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League on the weekend to assure itself of a playoff berth while putting Esquimalt Legion in a precarious position.

Doug Deschener and Guy Prentice scored three goals each to power Cablevision to a 13-8 win over New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies at Burnaby Sunday night, while on Saturday Cablevision edged Richmond Roadrunners 16-14 at Richmond.

The double victory gives Burnaby 21 points, seven more than Esquimalt which trails fourth-place Coquitlam by three points.

Esquimalt plays a home-and-home series against Coquitlam Tuesday at Esquimalt and Wednesday on the mainland and must win both games to retain any hope. Coquitlam has one game in hand.

Brian Cowie led New Westminster with three goals.

Top goal scorers for Burnaby were Lyle Robinson with four and Gary Purdon with a pair.

Rod Jensen led the Richmond attack with five goals. Brent Greig, Bob Johnston, Jim Northey and Art Hazell each scored a pair for Richmond.

Burnaby outshot Richmond 52-45.

Quebec sniper ends Prize quest

BISLEY, England (CP) — Canadian marksmen were still celebrating Sunday in their camp at the Bisley rifle meet Sunday over the Saturday feats of Alain Marion, a police officer from Luskville, Que., who won the coveted Queen's Prize for his second trophy of the final day of shooting.

Marion, 32, broke his own record score for the Queen's Prize when he scored 294 of a possible 300 points. He had shared the previous best with Briton Dick Rosling when the two tied at 293 in 1972. The Briton won the tiebreaker and Marion has been chasing the Queen's Prize ever since.

"This was my big aim and I am so happy because winning the Queen's Prize is the rifleman's dream," he said.

Earlier in the day, Marion beat Briton Arthur Clarke on a tiebreak shoot to capture the Lord Tedder Challenge Cup. He put all five tiebreak shots in the bullseye for a perfect 25 points.

He took the Queen's Prize by a single point over Ray Bramley, captain of the British team that leaves for competition in Canada on Wednesday.

Marion advanced to the final round of 100 competitors after shooting 147 of 150 in the semifinal round. He then dropped two points at 900 yards to enter the 1,000-yard stage four points behind leader Ken Brechin of Scotland.

Marion sent his first four shots into the bullseye and his fifth was in the inner ring, tying him with Bramley at the last shot.

The Canadian hit the bullseye with his final shot, taking the title when Bramley dropped a point.

Jack Butterfield of Corbyville, Ont., finished 22nd with 287 points. Bob Pitcairn of Delta, B.C., also had 287 but placed 24th.

A's down T-Men, take lead

Times News Services

Gord Quilty scored four goals to lead Coquitlam Adanacs to a 16-11 victory over Nanaimo Timbermen in a Western Lacrosse Association game at Coquitlam Saturday night.

Victory lifted Coquitlam into a two-point lead over Victoria Shamrocks who have one game in hand.

Shamrocks are home to Vancouver Burrards Wednesday and finish the season in Nanaimo Saturday.

Mike Reelie and Mark Valastin each scored three goals for the Adanacs with singles going to Tony Vendrasco, Jim Aitchison, Moe Jodoin, Kevin Parsons, Ray Mattinson and Randy Delmonico.

Nanaimo, aided by Ron MacNeil's three goals, led 6-3 at the end of the first period, but was trailing 9-8 after 40 minutes.

Also scoring for Timbermen were Roger Dubyna with two; and Wayne Reeve, Charn Dhillon, Bruce Avender, Doug Angrove, Ted Greves and Brian Evans, each with one.

It was also announced that Vancouver Burrards will not be deprived of their June 10 victory over Nanaimo Timbermen. An independent three-man board made the ruling.

WLA commissioner Wally Donaldson had taken away the two points from Burrards for allegedly using an ineligible senior B callup, Bill Husband, in their 17-14 win.

However, the board ruled that Husband did have permission from his New Westminster West Coast Senior B League team to play with Burrards.

Cox revives golf interest with triumph in Manitoba

Times News Services

Bob Cox of Richmond didn't know what to expect six months ago when he decided to take up competitive golf again after a long lay-off.

The 40-year old pro restricted his tournament outings to "neighborhood events" in B.C. because he wanted to watch his young family grow up, something which was very important to him.

Cox couldn't have guessed his fortunes in the sport would rise as dramatically as they did Sunday after he won the Manitoba Open with a six-under-par, 54-hole score of 210.

"I've got my interest back," he said before receiving his $3,000 cheque. "No one's more surprised than I am at winning this."

Cox had every reason to be surprised. Second-round leader and defending champion Jerry Anderson, of Toronto, was 11-under-par after nine holes Sunday, and it appeared as though he would coast to the championship.

Anderson, however, double-bogeyed the 12th hole and bogeyed four more times on his way to a five-under-par 211 to finish in a second-place tie with amateur Terry Hashimoto of Winnipeg.

Cox had rounds of 69, 72 and 69 the par-72 Pine Ridge Golf Course.

Three Victorians finished in the money. John Morgan and southpaw Bob Beauchemin, who both play out of Glen Meadows, won $623 each by finishing at 215 while B.C. Open champion Jim Rutledge, one behind at 216, pocketed $370.

At Wethersfield, Conn., Howard Twitty won the $300,000 Greater Hartford Open.

"I feel very good, but I'm not flying that high," a red-faced Twitty said after winning the $54,000 first prize. "Maybe because of the six-hole playoff."

The playoff with Jim Simons was the longest on Professional Golfers' Association tour this year. It ended when Twitty sank a nine-foot birdie putt.

Twitty's birdie ended five holes of cautious putting in which both golfers had collected four pars and one bogey.

Simons and Twitty had 18-under 266s following 72 holes of play at the 6,534-yard Wethersfield Country Club. Simons shot a 67 and Twitty a 69 to force the playoff at the par-71 course.

Gar Hamilton of Toronto, the only Canadian to survive the halfway cut Friday, finished with a 72 and a 283 to win $633.

At Jericho, N.Y., Sally Little of South Africa shot a three-over-par 75 but held on to win a $125,000 Ladies Pro tournament with a four-under 284.

Amy Alcott, leading money-winner on the tour who started the day in third place, four strokes behind Little, had a three-over-par 75 to finish in a tie for second with Beth Daniel at 288.

The victory, worth $18,750, was Little's second on the tour, and gave her $109,479 this season, the second straight year that she has won over $100,000.

In Chilliwack, amateur John Gentile of Pitt Meadows won the 36-hole Chilliwack Open with 139, three under par.

Gentile added a one-over-par 72 Sunday to his Saturday tally of 67 to finish with a one-stroke edge over Vancouver-area professionals Mark Ludeman and Norm Jarvis.

At Penticton, Glen MacDonald of Vancouver matched par with 216 for 54 holes to win the Penticton Open.

Roxburgh 'old man' on provincial squad

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former Canadian Amateur golf champion Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver will lead the B.C. men's Willingdon Cup golf team at the Canadian interprovincial team tournament for the 10th time in 11 years.

The team, selected at the B.C. Golf Association's men's and junior men's invitational here Saturday and Sunday, will include B.C.' Amateur champion Sandy Harper of Nanaimo, Rick Gibson and Dick Zokol, Roxburgh's club-mates at Vancouver's Marine Drive. The alternate is Dan Walker of Castlegar.

Roxburgh trailed Harper by five shots after four rounds of the B.C. Amateur but this weekend he turned in rounds of 67 and 71, six under par, to pull in front by six strokes.

Only 28, Roxburgh is the "old man" on the men's team. Sandy Harper is 23, Zokol 21 and Gibson, in his last year as a junior, 18.

The junior team includes Glenn Bannister of Abbotsford, the 19-year-old Gibson, Glen Heuser of Kelowna, Jamie Harper of Nanaimo, Sandy's 16-year-old brother, and alternate Neil Crofts of Vancouver.

It's the third straight year on both teams for Gibson, a former Victorian.

Gibson, who joined Zokol at Brigham Young University last year, had no trouble firing a 75 despite playing his last round without his golf shoes. He forgot them in his rush to get to the course and admitted "I could have been in trouble if it had rained."

Jim Bruce of Capilano will be the men's non-playing captain.

The Canadian Amateur will take place in Halifax Aug. 20 while the junior tournament will be played in Red Deer, Alta., a week later. B.C. has won the Willingdon championship six of the last 10 years.

I found good homes for three kittens. And it's not easy even to give away cats, as many of you will know. Mind you, I used a little psychology. The ad, as you'll see, said "Will deliver" which meant we could, by taking them to the homes ourselves, check people out and see whether we felt comfortable leaving the kittens there. Do you know, we had forty phone calls off that ad during the three days it was in the daily papers! You can't beat that.

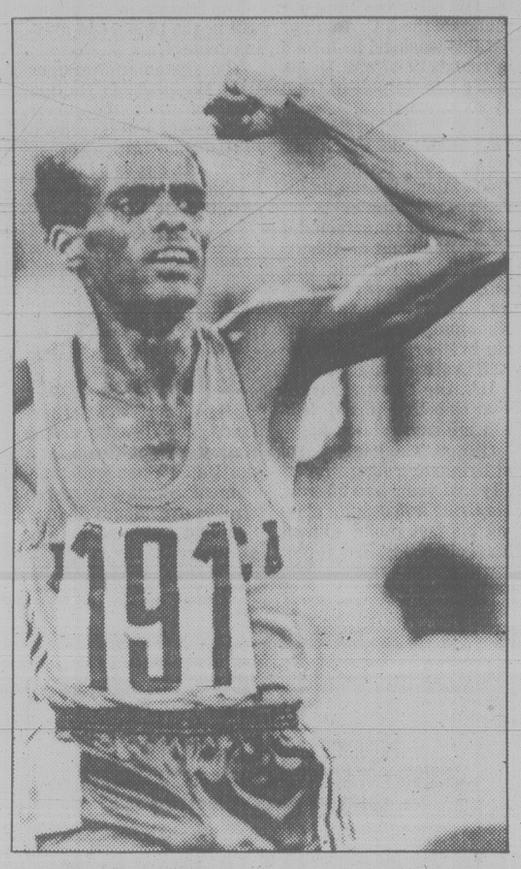
Ethiopian elbows wreck Viren's bid



ELBOW IS PROMINENT as Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia raises arm in victory after 10,000-metre final Sunday at Olympics. Ethiopian elbows were also prominent in tactical battle with Finns during race. Finland's Kaarlo Maaninka finished second.

MOSCOW (CP) — There were several Ethiopian elbows thrown Sunday and some of the shoving might have drawn a clipping penalty in a football game. But, for once, the unpleasantness at the Olympic Stadium had nothing to do with politics.

It was all part of the normal give-and-take of international distance running. And when it was over, 35-year-old Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia finally had the 10,000-metre championship he had been trying to win since 1972.

In a bruising tactical battle, Yifter and two teammates outmanoeuvred two Finnish runners, one of them the redoubtable Lasse Viren, and the slender little air force officer achieved the goal that had eluded him at the 1972 and 1976 Games, when the golds had gone to Viren.

At Munich eight years ago, Yifter had been the victim of a blunder by the Ethiopian coaching staff and had not shown up for the start of his race. Four years later he missed the race again when his country joinedan African boycott of the Montreal Games.

This time Yifter, Mohammed Kedir and Tolossa Kotu took turns harassing Viren and the second Finn, Kaarl Maaninka until Yifter pulled away from the group with 300 metres remaining. Maaninka beat out Kedir for the silver medal and Viren was fifth.

Viren's dream of winning his third successive 10,000 metres gold medal faded just 300 metres from the tape, but he said he knew earlier it was going to happen.

The race was a dramatic duel between the Ethiopians and Finns who ran bunched together, lap after lap.

"It was a rotten race," said Viren. "I waited too long, way too long.

"The Ethiopians commanded the race with murderous tactics. They broke the pace, continuously changing the lead, stopping and then pushing harder again to crack our nerves and resistance."

Viren said he and Maaninka tried to break the Ethiopian predominance, but it was too late.

"I knew that the Ethiopians, especially Yifter, had a superior kick on the last lap so when I realized we were not succeeding in tiring them out, I knew that I had no chance to win." he said.

Viren said he couldn't forgive himself for having let the race slip out of control.

In Saturday's track highlight, Steve Ovett decisively outran Sebastian Coe, who took the silver medal, in the 800 metres. The two Britons are expected to meet again in the 1,500-metre final next Friday.

East Germany, overshadowed by the Soviet Union in the first week of the Games, won 20 events to the Russians' nine during the weekend to narrow the gap at the top of the medal standings. With 112 events completed, the Russians had 43 golds to the East Germans' 31. Hungary was a distant third with six.

The men's and women's rowing teams spearheaded the East German charge, winning 11 of their 14 races. There were five more East German victories in swimming, three of them in world-record time, plus a double in the men's 110- and 400-metre hurdles, a come-from-behind triumph in women's platform diving and another gold in the cycling sprint.

The Russians claimed a few world records of their own as Nadezhda Olizarenko knocked more than a second off the 800-metre mark she had shared with Tatiana Kazankina, the Soviet defending champion, in the women's 800 metres and Yuri Vardanian became the first weightlifter of the Games to break all three records — snatch, jerk and total lift — in the 82-kilogram class.

As expected, Aleksandr Sidorenko led team-mate Sergei Fesenko home in the 400-metre individual medley. The two Russians had registered the fastest times in the event this year.

The other men's swimming finals also followed form as East German Jorg Woithe won the 100 freestyle, Russian Robertas Zulpa took the 200 breaststroke and Hungarian Sandor Vladar edged team-mate Zoltan Verraszto in the 200 backstroke.

The East Germans ended with 11 victories in 13 women's swimming events, matching their Montreal total, and missed a 12th when Michelle Ford of Australia upset 400-metre champion Ines Diers in the 800 freestyle.

But Rica Reinisch lowered the world record in the 200 backstroke, Petra Schneider improved her own world mark by more than two seconds in the 400 individual medley and a third record fell in the 4x100 freestyle relay.

The other East German winner was Ute Geweniger in the women's 100 breaststroke.

Daley Thompson of Britain faded in his later events and failed to break the world record in the decathlon. But he won the event easily, outscoring second-place Yuri Kutsenko of the Soviet Union by more than 150 points.

Sara Simeoni of Italy set a Games record by clearing 1.97 metres in the women's high jump while Dainis Kula and Aleksndr Makarov gave the Russians a 1-2 sweep in the men's javelin.

East German Thomas Munkelt shaded Alejandro Casanas in a photo finish to win the 110-metre hurdles, matching the triumph of team-mate Volker Beck in the 400 hurdles the day before.

In another close finish, Ludmila Kondratyeva, the Soviet world-record holder, nipped Marlis Goehr, from whom she took the record, in the women's 100 metres.

Finnish dismay at Viren's defeat in the 10,000 metres was mitigated when defending champion Pertti Karppinen outdistanced Russian and East German opponents in the single sculls. It was the only loss of the day for East Germany in men's rowing.

Soviet chances of a gold medal in men's basketball were jeopardized when the Russians suffered their first two losses of the tournament, 87-85 to Italy and 101-91 in overtime to unbeaten Yugoslavia.

A 4-2 loss to India in men's field hockey consigned the Russians to a bronze-medal playoff while the Indians qualified to meet Spain for the gold. The Russians also were beaten in women's play, losing 2-0 to Austria.

Budgets wrap up league in all-conquering fashion

VANCOUVER — It was a bit of an anti-climax, but Victoria Budgets followed up their pennant-clinching performance of the previous day by sweeping a Northwest Men's Fastball League double-header Sunday from Vancouver Thirsks.

The weekend sweep concluded Victoria's Northwest League commitments.

With Dave Wilson hurling a four-hitter, Budgets downed Thirsks 5-2 in the opening game and then, behind the four-hit pitching of Rob Guenter and Mark Smith, beat Thirsks 4-1.

In Abbotsford Saturday, Budgets clinched first place by winning twice — 1-0 and 2-1 — against Clearbrook Four Star Construction.

Guenter pitched a four-hitter in the first game and Dennis Eckhert smacked a home run while in the second game, Smith threw a five-hitter and Reg Underwood came up with a two-run homer.

In Sunday's first game, Wilson struck out six batters while Alden Govenlock went two for three at the plate, driving in two runs and Norm Goudie cracked a two-run homer.

Losing pitcher Jerome Brocklehurst went two for two at the plate for Thirsks.

Guenter struck out three batters in four innings in the second game and Smith, who relieved him in the fifth inning, struck out eight.

Catcher Bob Burrows was in fine hitting form, going two for three and driving in three runs, including a homer in the sixth inning.

Braves feel Phillie power; Bucs boost lead on Expos

By The Associated Press

Playing a 17-4 baseball game can be a grand way to spend an afternoon — assuming, of course, that your side has the 17.

"They are fun games to play offensively, but not much for the other side," said Philadelphia manager Dallas Green, whose Phillies had the 17 Sunday.

"I'm glad we got it out of our system," said Atlanta manager Bobby Cox, whose Braves had 4.

Elswhere in the National League Sunday, Pittsburgh Pirates beat San Francisco Giants 6-4, Cincinnati Reds battered New York Mets 10-4, Houston Astros beat Montreal Expos 6-3, San Diego Padres defeated St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 and, in 12 innings, Los Angeles Dodgers shaded Chicago Cubs 3-2.

"Offensively, we have struggled," said Green of the Phillies, whose output was the most in the National League this season and whose runs and hits were them most ever at Veterans Stadium. "Then you see something like this and you wonder why we can't do it all the time."

"Its good for everybody to get into the game and get some hits," said Gary Maddox, who led the assault with five runs batted in.

Pete Rose, who had three of the hits, sort of shrugged off the seeming uniqueness of the game.

"Don't forget the 23-22 game," he said of a wild Philadelphia victory over the Cubs in Chicago last season. "This kind of thing happens every year."

The beneficiary of the Phils' explosiveness was Steve Carlton, who posted his 16th victory, tops in the NL and tied with Steve Stone of Baltimore Orioles for the major league lead.

Jim Bibby, who has lost just once this year, chalked up his 13th win, and Kent Tekulve notched his 14th save as the Pirates widened their East Division lead to 2½ games over sagging Montreal Expos.

Two-run singles by Phil Garner in the first inning and Tim Foli in the fourth Joe Niekro's three hits and his combined seven-hitter with Dave Smith helped Houston hand Montreal its fourth loss in five games.

The only race in the American League appears to be for second place in the East Division. Detroit Tigers, in second place, split a doubleheader Sunday with Oakland A's, winning the opener 4-2 but losing the second game 4-0. Batimore Orioles were two percentage points back of Detroit after beating Milwaukee Brewers 5-4.

The Brewers, who started the weekend in second place, dropped to fourth — one-half game behind Detroit and Baltimore.

New York Yankees, East Division leaders by eight games, lost for the sixth time in their last 10 games, 8-0 to Kansas City Royals, runaway leaders in the AL West Division by 11½ games over Texas.

Elsewhere Sunday, Minnesota Twins edged Boston Red Sox 5-4, Toronto Blue Jays blanked Seattle Mariners 5-0 and Texas split with Chicago White Sox, dropping the opener 3-2 then taking the nightcap 4-3 in 13 innings.

Sebastian didn't 'run race well'

MOSCOW (AP) — Sebastian Coe has two days to rediscover his running form and re-plan his tactics against Steve Ovett, his conqueror in the Olympic 800 metres.

The two British rivals, who share the world record of 3:32.1 for the 1,500 metres, will dispute the gold medal over that distance with the first round Wednesday, the semi-finals Thursday and the final Friday.

The Ovett-Coe clashes, built up as the biggest track event in years, started with a flop. The 800-metre final Saturday never came to life because Coe was off form.

"Some days you run well and some days you don't," the slim 23-year-old economics student said. "I didn't run this race well."

Coe, who set world records for the 800 and 1,500 metres and the mile in an amazing 42-day spell last year, has been preparing for the Olympics for months. But when the day came for the 800 metres final he appeared to lose his concentration.

Ovett finished in one minute 45.40 seconds. Coe took the silver medal in 1:45.90 and Kirov was third in 1:46.00.

Coe's world record, set last summer, is 1:42.4. A stiff breeze gusted in Lenin Stadium and contributed to the slow race.

Coe is famed for his smooth, steady running, Ovett for his powerful finish. The crowd of 100,000 at Moscow's Lenin Stadium expected to see Coe try to take an early lead over his rival, but it didn't happen. He stayed at the back of the field until it was too late.

At the start of the second lap, Ovett was boxed in and had difficulty pushing his way free. It was the perfect moment for Coe to get ahead of his rival and make a long run for home.

But he hung back behind Ovett, perhaps to watch him, perhaps not alive to the situation.

Ovett, a big, powerful athlete who can use his shoulders to forge through a crowded pack, came out of it and followed Nikolai Kirov of the Soviet Union in a spurt to the lead on the back straight.

Still Coe didn't move forward.

"I suppose I realized the break was on, but I just didn't gather it quickly enough," he said. "I was too slow to respond."

Ovett went past Kirov on the final bend and strode powerfully to the finish line. Coe got into the race at last, overtook the Russian and was gaining slightly on Ovett in the last 20 metres, but his chance had then gone.

The normally-silent Ovett said Sunday he doesn't consider Coe an enemy.

"We can't call each other friends. We're reallly more associates — business associates."

Ovett, who didn't talk to the media after his victory, was interviewed by Adrian Metcalfe of ITV, the independent British television network.

Ovett said the supposed hatred between the two middle distance runners is a portrait painted by the media.

"Our relationship is really a little bit different than everybody thinks. The media tend to be black and white, good guy and bad guy, with Seb the good guy and me the bad guy — I guess because I don't talk to the press. But it's not as simple as that.

"I don't know him very well. We only have contact once or twice a year. I've never talked to him in any depth."

Ovett says the intensity of their rivalry, as drummed up in the press, actually keeps the two apart.

"If we were together, the photographers might ask me to put my fist under his chin. So we avoid contact."

Ovett said the hyped-up hatred only does harm.

"British sport loses something because of this. Continually the British media try to pair us off. It's really a sad loss that they don't enjoy us while we're here. We're not going to be around very long. They should enjoy us as a team."

Ovett, dubbed Mr. Arrogance by the British press for his refusal to grant interviews, said he goes into a shell as self protection.

"I don't want to become public property. I'm a very shy person."

Clerc looses his cool

Times News Services

Brian Gottfried, surging ahead when Jose-Luis Clerc became flustered at a linesman's call, won the $24,500 first prize in the Washington, D.C., Grand Prix men's tennis tournament 7-5, 4-6, 6-4 Sunday.

The linesman's call came as Gottfried led 6-5 in the first set with Clerc serving at 15-all. Gottfried looped a weak lob that appeared to land outside the sideline.

Clerc summoned the linesman to inspect the mark on the surface, but the linesman insisted the ball had caught the tape before scuffing the ground. Flustered, Clerc botched two more shots to give Gottfried the first set and allowed Gottfried to surge to a 3-1 lead in the second set before regaining his cool.

At Kitzbuehel, Austria, Argentine Guillermo Vilas scored a 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 victory over Czechoslovakian Ivan Lendl in the Austrian International.

Romanian Virginia Ruzici collected $8,500 and her second winner's cup since 1978 in a women's singles victory over Czechoslovakian Hana Mandlikova. Mandlikova won the first set 6-3, lost the second 6-1 while suffering stomach muscle problems, which forced her to concede the match.

And in Richmond, Va., top-seeded Martina Navratilova handily defeated unheralded and unseeded amateur Mary Lou Piatek 6-3, 6-0 to win a $100,000 women's tournament.

Best and Bain provide spark as Portland cools off Caps

Times News Services

Clyde Best turned on his old tormentor, John Craven, as Portland Timbers scored a 5-1 victory over Vancouver Whitecaps in a North American Soccer League game at Portland Saturday.

Best scored at 70:23 to put the Whitecaps away after Kevin Hector sliced a two-goal deficit in half with a header at 62:30.

Portland's John Bain picked the occasion the score his second, third and fourth goals of the year.

In other years, the physical Craven — one of the league's most feared central defenders — has given the Best fits. Not this time.

Best dominated both the penalty area and Craven as the Timbers grabbed an early lead.

He put the icing on one of the Timbers' biggest wins by nailing a header just inside the near post in the 81st minute for his second goal.

The Timbers, 9-15, have won three of their last four games while the defending NASL champion Whitecaps, now 14-11, came into Portland riding the crest of five victories in six games.

Elsewhere, Edmonton Drillers played the role of spoilers as they prevented Chicago from clinching the Central Division title by topping the Sting 2-1 on Sunday.

Besides ruining an early party for the Sting, the Drillers helped themselves by evening their record at 13-13 and moving to within four points of first-place California Surf in the American Conference West Division. Chicago, which boasts the NASL's second-best record, dropped to 19-7.

Elsewhere Sunday, Washington Diplomats beat Rochester Lancers 4-2, Houston Hurricane defeated Atlanta Chiefs 3-1 and Tulsa Roughnecks blanked Memphis Rogues 3-0.

On Saturday, Philadelphia Fury upset Seattle Sounders 1-0, Los Angeles Aztecs blanked Toronto Blizzard 1-0, New England Tea Men outscored San Diego Sockers 3-2, Minnesota Kicks defeated San Jose Earthquake 2-1 in overtime and Dallas Tornado shaded Detroit Express 2-1.

It was Henk ten Cate's goal at 3:10 of the first overtime period that gave Edmonton the victory. The Drillers' Dwight Lodeweges sent the game into overtime with less than two minutes left in regulation time, scoring his sixth penalty kick of the season after Chicago defender Tasso Koutsoukos was called for tripping Edmonton reserve forward Ross Ongaro.

DEJECTED and painfully ignored, East Vancouver third baseman Ken Maxwell (20) strolls off field as Victoria Firefighters mob pitcher Mike Cathcart after victory in provincial Senior Babe Ruth baseball championship Sunday. Firemen won fourth straight B.C. title with 3-2 victory.

Firefighters rule again

Victoria Firefighters were forced to wait until the final moment before winning their fourth straight B.C. Senior Babe Ruth baseball championship Sunday with a 3-2 decision over East Vancouver.

They were trailing 2-1 and two men were out in the bottom of the seventh inning before they struck for the winning runs.

Pitcher Mike Cathcart, who was named the tournament's most valuable player, started the rally with a triple. Bill Hayman then walked and Cathcart scored the tying run when Darrel Richardson's ground ball was mishandled by the Vancouver second baseman.

Ryan Campbell followed with a double to score Hayman.

Cathcart allowed six hits while Doug Spicer of East Vancouver gave up only four in a losing cause.

Spicer was named the top pitcher of the tournament.

Rob Ekstrom of Victoria won the tournament batting championship with a .450 average.

The Firefighters, who went through the tournament undefeated, advance to the Pacific Northwest regional tournament in Moses Lake, Wash., beginning Saturday.

At Prince George, Trail scored six runs in the top of the eighth inning Saturday to defeat Gordon Head 7-1 to win the B.C. Babe Ruth (14-15) championship.

Victoria got its lone run in the second, but Trail tied the game in the third.

Trail took advantage of Victoria miscues in the extra inning, scoring on three hits and three errors.

Trail, which defeated Victoria 3-0 earlier in the tournament, advances to the Northwest championship in Lewiston, Idaho, starting Friday.

Conner continues to dominate trials

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Freedom skipper Dennis Conner kept up his torrid pace in Ameriea's Cup yachting trials Sunday, sweeping four races from Russell Long's yacht, Clipper.

The victories, over shortened courses, gave Conner, 37, of San Diego, 26 victories in his 28 races this summer.

Long fell to 8-20, while the third American skipper, 1977 Cup defender Ted Turner, has struggled to a 6-18 mark aboard Courageous.

Conner faces Turner in the trials scheduled today.

Long was able to grab an early lead in the final three races, but Conner roared back and led by at least 45 seconds at the first turn on the two-leg course on Rhode Island Sound.

"It's the people who cross the finish line first that's the most important thing," Conner said when asked about the better starts by Long.

Conner said he wasn't worried about the lack of races going the full 12.5 miles scheduled for the day's races, saying, "The officials thought we enjoyed a nice lead, and it made no sense to keep it going if we're ahead by three minutes after seven miles."

He won the last three races by one m inute three seconds, 36 seconds and 1:05.

Both skippers filed protests at the start of the third race when the jockeying for position brought them too close to the race committee yacht.

Angry Mariners overpower Blues

Victoria Blues shouldn't have made Bellingham Mariners angry.

The Blues probably created some animosity by winning three straight games from the Northern Division leaders last week, twice here and once in Bellingham.

But Sunday, in the wind-up of a three-game series at Royal Athletic Park, the Mariners apparently said "that's enough" and routed the Blues 12-2 to take a 6½-game lead over the second-place Victoria team, which now is .500 on the season.

The Mariners scored in every inning but the sixth and pounded out 20 hits in the process.

Three Victoria pitchers toiled in vain with starter Jim Goff taking the loss.

Shortstop Darnell Coles, the No. 1 draft pick of Seattle Mariners, carried the biggest stick for Bellingham, clubbing four hits, including a home run. Catcher Dan Firova tripled home two runs in Bellingham's three-run outburst in the third.

Chris Hunger earned the pitching victory for Bellingham. He allowed eight hits before giving way to Mark Pedersen in the ninth.

Barry Moss had three hits in four trips for the Blues while Don Hyman scored two runs.

On Saturday, the Blues defeated the visitors 9-5 as they took advantage of wildness on the part of Bellingham pitchers, who issued nine bases on balls.

Victoria's Dave Weis had a no-hitter until Ivan Calderon hit a home run for Bellingham in the fifth. Weiss then coasted along until the eighth when Enrique Diaz hit a three-run homer, bringing righthander Eric Snider on in relief.

Gary Humpston had three hits for the Blues, scoring twice and driving in two runs. Hyman batted in a pair.

Blues play in Bend tonight and Tuesday and in Walla Walla Wednesday and Thursday before returning home against Bend Friday for the start of an eight-game stand.

Lakehill keeps slim hope alive

They're down to three teams in the Greater Victoria Little League baseball playoffs where Triangle continues to be the team to beat.

Lakehill had to win two games in two days during the weekend and has to do it again tonight to reach Tuesday night's final of the double-knockout tournament.

After eliminating Gordon Head with a 7-3 decision Saturday, Lakehill blasted Esquimalt 13-4 Sunday to reach tonight's final of the loser's bracket. Lakehill plays Layritz at 6:30 at Hampton Park.

The winner of that one goes against unbeaten Triangle at the same time, same place Tuesday night. A win by Triangle would wrap up the tourney and a berth in the B.C. Little League championships this weekend in Coquitlam.

Should Triangle lose Tuesday, the same two teams would meet again Wednesday night.

Triangle didn't look in any danger Saturday, though, while crushing Layritz 11-2 in the winners' bracket final when Dan Woodley and Darrell Williams combined to pitch a one-hitter.

In Sunday's game, Bruce Ellemo had two hits, scored two runs and and had two RBIs for Lakehill and teammate Ian McArthur drove in three runs.

Bottlers advance by forfeit

Victoria's Goodwill Bottlers cleared the first hurdle of the B.C. intermediate "A" lacrosse playoffs the easy way — by a walkover.

Bottlers were scheduled to play Burnaby in a two-game provincial final at the weekend. Burnaby, however, failed to show for Saturday's opener at Pearkes Arena, much to the chagrin of many fans who turned out.

Victoria executives, who had driven three vans to the ferry to pick up the Burnaby players, also were incensed that the mainland team made no effort to offer an explanation.

The series was forfeited to Victoria and Bottlers now will meet the winners of a New Westminster-Richmond playoff in the final.

HOT-AIR CHAMPION

GRANDE PRAIRIE (CP) — Harold Warner of Grande Prairie has been named winner of the Canadian hot air balloon championship.

Akais even junior series

A fifth game will be necessary in the best-of-five B.C. junior A baseball semi-finals between Victoria Merchants and Richmond Akai.

After dropping two games here on Saturday, Richmond squared the series at Richmond Sunday by trimming Merchants 10-1 in the first game and then taking the second in 10 innings, 3-2.

Merchants took the first two games 8-7 and 5-3.

Fifth game is scheduled for Lambrick Park Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Winner will meet the winner of the series between Surrey and Vancouver Pharoahs in the B.C. final next weekend.

Eight runs in the third inning told the story of the first-game as Richmond had seven straight hits off two Victoria pitchers, Ron Burton and Dean Potter.

Howie Siemens hit a home run for Richmond.

In the second game, Richmond broke a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the 10th on a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded.

Mike Joel, a pickup player from Burnaby, was the losing pitcher for Victoria, having taken over for starter Larry Wedgewood in the ninth.

Setting a blistering pace in very warm weather, Mike Creery won the Labatts Island 10-mile road race Saturday night.

This Beauty doesn't let her fans down

It was favorites' day at Sandown Raceway Saturday with Amortizors Beauty getting most of the attention from the public in the feature and then proving she deserved it.

The six-year old brown mare, owned by Irene Tetrault and driven by Keith Quinlan, captured the $2,700 Invitational mile pace in 2:03.2 for her fifth win of the meeting, her eighth of the year and, off her latest efforts, must rank as the class at the meet at the moment.

Three weeks ago, Amortizors Beauty had tested the likes of Michaels Glory, the new Sandown and B.C. track record holder, and Over Burden, and although beaten, had turned in a sparkling 2:01.2.

One week later she met a similar field to that which she faced Saturday and handled them.

Then she took a week off and Saturday on her return was odds on and returned $3.10, $2.40 and $2.20.

Irish Splendor was second and Andys Peyton third.

Quinlan and Joe Hudon each had two winners. Quinlan was in the sulky for Ben Quest ($5.80) in the first while Hudon was the teamster for Rays Golden Patch ($3.90) in the third and Little Pence ($4.60) in the fourth.

Marshall Green scored his first win at the meeting with Shi Duke ($26.80) in the fifth. It was the longest price of the day, with only two winners — Fleeting Fame ($14.80) in the 10th being the other — paying off in double figures.

Wonder horse snaps another world mark

VERNON, N.Y. (AP) — Niatross, the harness racing wonder horse, added a new world record to his collection Saturday, winning the Thomas P. Gaines Gold Trophy race for three-year-olds at Vernon Downs.

The son of Albatross set a new standard for two combined miles, adding a final heat of one minute, 54 seconds to the 1:53 3-5 time clocked in the first heat. The first heat time is two-fifths of a second off his week-old world record.

Storm Damage was second, two lengths back.

The three-year-old pacer, coming off a world-record 1:53 1-5 performance in the $1-million Meadowlands Pace, has won seven of nine starts and earned more than $732,000 this season. Last year, he was named harness-horse-of-the-year when he went undefeated in 13 starts.

B.C. shares junior title

SASKATOON — B.C. and Manitoba battled to a 1-1 tie Sunday and had to share the Western Canada under-23 women's field hockey title. Both sides ended the four-team round-robin tournament with two wins and a tie.

B.C. defeated Saskatchewan 3-1, with Julie McKenzie of Kelowna scoring two goals and Carol Pedlar of Vancouver getting the other goal, and then blanked Alberta 3-0. Ann Crofts scored two goals and Celia O'Connor got the other goal. Both girls are from Vancouver.

In their last game of the tourney — the 1-1 tie with Alberta Sunday afternoon — the B.C. girls came back to force the draw with a late goal by O'Connor.

Three Vancouver Island girls — Gail Hoskins and Mary Cavin of Victoria and Cindy James of Duncan — played on the B.C. squad.

Golf winners

Tony Ritchie Friday formed part of the winning foursome for the second year in a row as he combined with Al Scott, Bill Clark and Bill Denson to win the annual Eaton's invitational golf tournament for the Gordie Howe Shield at Royal Colwood.

Seasprays get berth in Canadian finals

Vancouver Magicians did have a few tricks up their sleeves Sunday, but not quite enough to stop Victoria Seaspray Properties from winning the British Columbia junior men's softball championship at Central Park.

The Magicians outsmarted Campbell River Blues 1-0, dazzled Vanderhoof Omineca 4-2 in the losers' bracket final of the four-team, double-loss tournament and then went on to stun the Seasprays 6-4 and force a second meeting between the two in the championship final.

But this time the Sprays, with Wayne Phillips finishing off a fine weekend with a three-hitter and Darryl Coldwell in great hitting form, blasted the Magicians 11-0 to take the title.

Coldwell capped a six-run spree in the third inning by cracking a bases-loaded home run.

On Saturday, Avie Stubbington hit a home run in the bottom of the eighth inning to give Seasprays a 6-5 win over Vanderhoof and a berth in the final. Earlier, the Sprays beat Campbell River 4-2.

The Victorians now go to the Canadian junior championship in Scarborough, Ont., Aug. 6 to 10.

At Hyacinth Park, Stockers North Americans won the first game and split a women's exhibition doubleheader with Yakima Stealers for the second time in two days.

Winning pitcher Debbie Derksen hurled a three-hitter and, after a five-run burst by Stockers in the fourth inning, Sandy Ferguson scored the winning run on a Diane Daniels' triple in the sixth.

In the second game, Yakima scored the game's only run in the bottom of the seventh inning to nip Stockers 1-0. Lisa Hayton was the losing pitcher.

On Saturday, Gale Prince drove in two runs as Stockers downed Yakima 7-4 but Stealers won the second game 3-0.

In playoff action, Kelowna downed New Westminster 6-1 Sunday in Kelowna to win the B.C. berth in the Western Canadian senior B men's tourney at Brandon, Man., Aug. 29 to Sept. 1.

Ingraham of Victoria bowed out of the tournament Saturday, losing to Kelowna 1-0 after defeating Nanaimo Tally-Ho 2-0 on Len Carolan's three-hitter.

At Macdonald Park, Knowles Realty crushed Victoria Athletics 10-0 in the final to win the 14-team Heywood Avenue Men's League benefit tournament, which raised almost $2,000 for the Pearkes Clinic.

Athletics downed Ingraham Hotel 5-0 in the semi-final while Knowles went undefeated through the double-loss tourney.

Don Frampton of Knowles was named the tournament's most-valuable player. The top hitter was John Cocciolone and top pitcher was Brian Scotney of Knowles.

Named to the tourney all-star team were infielders Pat Hume and Randy Epp of Ingraham, Gord Rutherford of Capital Builders, Ryan Talbot of Athletics and Barry Myers of Harmac of Nanaimo; outfielders Barry Milne and Hank Klatt of Capital Builders and Steve Coleman of Athletics and pitcher Larry McKinnon of Knowles Realty.

In a Stuffy McGinnis Men's League game that went two extra innings at Central Park, John Hughes singled home Bob Bugslag in the ninth to crack a tie and give Victoria Athletics a 3-2 victory over Tod Hackett Construction.

Winning pitcher Mel Nelson scattered five hits.

Sellers funeral held

LONDON (Reuter) — British actor Peter Sellers, one of the greatest comic actors in the history of film, was cremated Saturday following a church service attended by about 30 close friends and relatives.

Spike Milligan and Harry Secombe, friends of Sellers and partners with him in the zany radio series called The Goon Show, were among the mourners who also included Lord Snowdon, former husband of Princess Margaret, and Sellers' second wife, Britt Ekland.

Sellers' widow, Lynne Frederick, 26, sobbed loudly as she was helped to the service through large crowds of reporters and onlookers.

The British comedian, whose career in films spanned more than 20 years, died in hospital last Thursday at the age of 54 following a massive heart attack.

Messages on many of the wreaths recalled Sellers' well-known comedy roles. One was signed Cato, the name of a Chinese manservant in the actor's Pink Panther films.

Spectators in Newfoundland watch mechanical whale used in Mowatt- book film

End to actors' strike no nearer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The strike by film and prime-time television actors began its second week today with no negotiations in sight and no new signs of either side softening on the controversial home video issue.

The strike is also having its effects in Canada, as filming of scenes for the movie of Farley Mowatt's A Whale for the Killing were disrupted when principal actor Peter Strauss joined the Screen Actors' Guild strike.

The filming was taking place in Quidi Vidi Harbor, Nfld.

A spokesman for the Guild in Hollywood said in a taped telephone message that "as of today, the producers are still not willing to continue the contract talks which are necessary to end the dispute.

"They are still toughing it out. They mistakenly believe that by some magic, the Guild and AFTRA (American Federation of Television and Radio Artists) will hand them your services on a silver platter for almost nothing."

Billy Hunt, head of the Motion Picture Industries Negotiating Committee, said Sunday he didn't expect any breakthrough in the dispute this week, noting that producers are busy negotiating with the American Federation of Musicians, whose contract expires at midnight Thursday night.

The film dispute centres on demands by the two actors' unions for six per cent of the producers' gross receipts for original programs for pay TV, videocassette and videodiscs.

The producers have offered to pay the actors 3.6 per cent of the gross for dramatic, comedy and variety shows and two per cent for other programs such as talk shows or game shows.

But on pay TV the payments would begin only after a program has been broadcast for two years.

Ted Knight to try again

scott's world
by vernon scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ted Knight, who gave fatheads a hero in the person of newscaster Ted Baxter on The Mary Tyler Moore Show, will make a second try at starring in his own series this fall.

Three years ago The Ted Knight Show failed to survive a full season.

"It was too wrong and too soon after Mary's show," Knight said in Baxter's phony, falsely hearty baritone. "It was a bomberino.

"I shouldn't have done it. Viewers were not prepared to accept the transition. But it was in the heat of the moment and we were anxious to capitalize on Baxter's popularity. It was a mistake.

"The character I played was the head of an escort agency with six dames working for him. It wasn't a good concept. I guess it was all for the best. I got it out of my system and forgot about it."

Knight's new show is Too Close For Comfort, in which he plays a married man (with wife Nancy Dussault) with a pair of gorgeous, nubile and marriageable daughters.

As Henry Rush, a cartoon illustrator who moonlights by drawing schlock comic characters for kids, Knight will again be seen as the strutting pouter pigeon but considerably toned down from the bumbling Baxter.

"The Ted Knight Show didn't succeed because my character was too much of an authority figure," the actor said. "I'm at my best when I'm playing a Uriah Heep kind of guy, humorously groveling to people with power over me.

"My comedy is based on a character who must be accountable to someone. In the new show, Henry Rush is dogged by a deadline every day and he has a tough, unrelenting boss.

"Actually, Henry is a pretty bright guy. He's certainly smarter than Ted Baxter. He's also more polished and subtle. But he can grovel on occasion.

"I don't want to make the mistake of attempting to carry each episode by myself as I did on The Ted Knight Show. I'm hopeful we can spread the action around to the rest of the cast.

"In time, I'd like to play straight for the other characters, like Mary did on our old show. Dussault is a veteran, a fine comedienne and singer. And the girls — Deborah Van Valkenbugh and Lydia Cornell — will come into their own.

"More than likely, I'll have to carry the first few shows to get the season started but it should be distributed gradually by the middle of the year."

After his situation comedy bombed, Knight chose to keep a low profile, anticipating viewers would forget his sitcom personna.

HOW TO PLAY

Locked inside the "SUMMERFUNTHING" safe are many valuable prizes. Some of those prizes could be yours if you find the correct PASSWORD that opens the combination lock. It's an exciting game that's fun and easy to enter. The instructions on the dial give you the position of the letters in the "SUMMERFUNTHING" PASSWORD. All you have to do is find the first letter to start. For instance, suppose you started at the letter E and the instructions read 2nd LETTER-FOUR COUNTER CLOCKWISE. Count four spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter E and you arrive at the letter A. The next instruction reads 3rd LETTER-EIGHT COUNTER CLOCKWISE, so count off eight spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter A and you arrive at the letter S. Finally the 4th letter. SIX CLOCKWISE means you count in a clockwise direction from the letter S and you arrive at the letter Y. In this example the PASSWORD is the word E-A-S-Y. To give you another clue and to add to the interest, each day's password is scrambled and you will find it at the bottom of the illustration.

GAME RULES

1. Winners will be chosen by random drawing from all valid entries. All winners must answer a skill testing question.
2. Winners from the previous week will be published in the Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist.
3. It is not necessary for contestants to buy the Colonist or Times to enter the SUMMERFUNTHING contest. An exact drawing of the entry form printed in the Colonist or Times may be made on a plain piece of paper. Note: copies produced by any other process will not be accepted.
4. The SUMMERFUNTHING judges will have the final decision on any interpretation of Game rules.
5. As a condition of receiving prizes, recipients agree to allow publication of their names and pictures in the Colonist or Times for no additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all rules. No prize substitutions.
6. The contest is open to all readers of the Daily Colonist and Victoria Times on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. Employees of Victoria Press and their immediate families are not eligible to enter.
7. In fairness to all, the Colonist or Times cannot answer questions or respond to phone calls or letters regarding THE SUMMERFUNTHING CONTEST.
8. All winners will be determined by a random draw from all valid entries.

Chapter on miniatures houseplant book treat garden notes

by helen chesnut

A remarkable thing about this gardening hobby is the number of books that have been written on the subject — and are continuing to be written. Just when you thought everything possible has been covered on the subject of, say, gladiolas or houseplants, along comes another book with new facts or angles on the topic.

Such is the case with a book on houseplants published in June. Its title is The Complete Book of Houseplants by Charles Marden Fitch. Published in Canada by Clarke, Irwin & Co., it's a paperback costing $7.95.

A world traveller, the author emphasizes knowing the geographical origins of any plant you choose for indoor culture. Knowing the type of environment where the plant thrives in nature gives the indoor gardener the key to growing it successfully. Obviously, the tropical desert euphorbia will need different lighting, soil humidity and amounts of watering from the rain-forest philodendron.

There are many helpful lists for houseplant enthusiasts. Included are lists of different plants for various lighting conditions as well as instructions on indoor lighting. For planning a succession of indoor bloom there is a calendar of houseplant blooming times and there's also a list of plant societies.

For those, like me, who especially like working with bulbs there is a chapter on bulbs to grow indoors. For the easy indoor gardener there is a chapter on cacti and succulents. For the more ambitious, another chapter is devoted to orchid growing.

But the chapter that especially delighted me was the one on miniatures. It sent me to my files for a letter I'd kept from a lady who had just become an apartment dweller. She was interested in growing miniatures, having experienced success with miniature sinningias (gloxinia) and ficus in a small terrarium.

She mentioned a book called Little Plants for Small Spaces by Elvin McDonald which began her interest in miniatures which she feels is a most interesting hobby for apartment-dwelling frustrated gardeners.

One frustration I share with her is that of trying to find good mail-order nurseries for unusual plants. It's too bad to be always having to send to Ontario for anything out of the ordinary. This goes for outdoor as well as indoor plants, miniature or otherwise.

One excellent source of houseplants with a good listing of miniatures is Harborcrest Nurseries at 4634 W. Saanich Road. There is an especially large selection of miniature African Violets as well as miniature roses, sinningias and geraniums. They have a large listing of cactus and succulents, many of which are suitable for miniature gardens.

The Complete Book of Houseplants lists many miniatures to try, including ground covers and trailers, compact ferns, begonias, bulbs, geraniums, gloxinias and African Violets, orchids and succulents. The author gives complete instructions for planting up a terrarium and gives suggestions for the most artistically pleasing arrangements of the plants. One example is a crystal bowl planted with a miniature African Violet in the centre, with a jewel orchid to one side, a tidy creeper to the other.

A larger glass container might contain tiny gloxinias set among rounded stones, ringed by a miniature ground cover like baby's tears. All these humidity-loving plants thrive in semi-enclosed or enclosed glass containers. I like to haunt second-hand stores for discarded fish tanks.

For the beginning miniature gardener, probably a desert garden would be the easiest and most instantly rewarding. This is a good project for a child.

You can often pick up small cactus in the supermarket and the small ones are quite inexpensive. Buy a few and arrange them in some shallow container made of wood or pottery. Add a few stones and woodchunks and you have a desert landscape.

Not terrarium material or desert lovers are the geraniums. This new book lists some good miniatures in his chapter on geraniums.

Aged panic, 23 roomers die in fire

BRADLEY BEACH, N.J. (UPI) — A stairway that acted as a wind tunnel helped fuel a smoky rooming house blaze that killed 23 people, apparently including some elderly and retarded victims who had panicked and locked themselves in their rooms, authorities say.

But they said it will take several days to determine the origin of the weekend blaze at the Brinley Inn.

Many of the tenants — ranging in age from 26 to 81 — died in the four-story building when, confused and frightened, they locked themselves in, authorities said.

The blaze broke out at 11 p.m. Saturday in a first-floor lounge at the front of the 45-year-old building.

Huge clouds of acrid black smoke quickly filled the building. Minutes later, an explosion blew out windows and sent flames licking up a wood stairway to the other floors of the home, said Gene Wilkins, director of the Monmouth County First Aid Academy.

Fire officials said the stairwell acted as a wind tunnel that caused the fire to spread rapidly.

Witnesses said they heard frantic screams and moans from residents banging on windows for help. After a few minutes, they said, the screams stopped and the only sound was that of the flames.

Firefighters had the blaze under control in 45 minutes. Ambulances from about 20 towns took the dead and injured to the Jersey Shore Medical Center in Neptune, where 14 survivors were treated for minor injuries.

Monmouth Prosecutor Alexander Lehrer said they were taken later to other county facilities. One woman, Jenny Piesycynski, remained in stable condition Sunday at the hospital, a spokeswoman said.

Nine firefighters were also treated for minor injuries.

Authorities withheld identifications of most of the victims pending a news conference today.

Canadians could learn a lot from Third World countries if we weren't so "arrogant," says former missionary Dr. Robert McClure. "There isn't a problem we face that hasn't existed in some other country," says McClure, who was moderator of the United Church of Canada for three years. McClure, 79, now retired and living in Toronto, says marijuana use is one of many issues in which Canada could learn from the experiences of others. "Canadians go about this in an entirely different way than I would," he said. "I'd say 'Let's go study the countries that have had marijuana for 3,000 years and let's see what it does to people.' But that isn't the Canadian way of doing things. We're too arrogant for that. Instead, in Canada, tests are conducted using laboratory animals. If we everh have a marijuana problem among our rodents, we're very well equipped for it."

McClure

Alexander Bradshaw, the British-born former husband of Susan Eisenhower, granddaughter of Dwight Eisenhower, is entering St. Bernard's Seminary, in Rochester, to study for the Roman Catholic priesthood. Bradshaw, a 38-year-old lawyer, said: "It's something that's long been a wish of mine, in the sense that I nearly did it in my twenties. I had the inclination but not the courage, and instead I got married."

A former Hungarian countess, Stella Andrassy, 78, once led an opulent life. Today she bakes meatloaf on a backyard solar stove in Kingston, N.J. The Swedish-born grandmother was awarded a patent two years ago for the solar stove which can get as hot as 350 degrees. Her next project — "my most important invention" — is a solar process to turn sewage sludge into both drinking water and fertilizer.

Consumer crusader Ralph Nader was called a "multinational troublemaker" by the West Australian government when he commented that their laws would be unconstitutional in the U.S. Aussie laws require a police permit for more than three people to gather in a public place to discuss public issues, with no right of appeal if the permit is refused. Police minister William Hassell said Nader "apparently thinks a 12-hour visit to Perth qualifies him to lecture Australians and their governments on their laws."

Dear Abby:

Is it against the law for a husband and wife to appear in public — restaurants, shopping, etc. — the husband dressed as a woman, and the wife dressed as a man?

Paul and I are both normal in every sense of the word. It all started this way: I am 5-foot-11, and Paul is 5-foot-5. We are as compatible as two people can be, but we have always felt somewhat conspicuous in public. I stopped wearing heels.

One day I bought some women's wedgie shoes in Paul's size and gave them to him. He tried them on, found them to be very comfortable and was delighted with the extra height they provided. After wearing these wedgies a few times, he wanted another pair. Now he refuses to wear anything else. Just for fun, I put some makeup on him and got him a woman's wig, and we went to dinner that way. We loved it! Then I started to dress like a man, and now we do it all the time. I assure you we are sexually normal. Someone told me that this is against the law. Is it?

J.J.

Dear J.J.:

What is legal in one community may be illegal in another. Play it safe and consult a local lawyer.

Dear Abby:

I read the letters concerning having gold removed from a person's mouth after death.

I specialize in reconstructive dentistry, and it is not uncommon to use between two and three ounces of gold in an individual's mouth. Many patients have taken to the grave enough gold to pay for the funeral. However, I've been torn over a decision to mention this to my patients for fear they might find it objectionable, or look upon it as a desecration of the body.

I know that not all dentists feel as I do, but I would be perfectly willing to accommodate a bereaved spouse or the kin of a loved one by performing this kind of dentistry.

D.D.S.

Dear D.D.S.:

You claim the distinction of being the only dentist among my readers to make such an offer. Congratulations. I was informed by others in your profession that getting a dentist to perform this type of surgery would be "like pulling teeth."

Dear Abby:

I'm happy for that woman with multiple sclerosis who was carried up five flights of stairs in a Japanese temple and on and off airplanes by a husband who not once hinted that being married to a disabled woman was at times inconvenient.

I wasn't that lucky. After I got MS and became less able to function, my husband divorced me and left me with two teenagers to raise alone.

Unusual? Not really. Statistics show that approximately 80 per cent of the women with MS end up divorced, as compared to 15 per cent when the husband develops it.

Once there was a fish called salmon

The old man and the boy were alloted Boat Number 13, a circumstance that caused the old man to frown a little. But he did not argue . . . he had learned better than that. They climbed into the boat with their gear. The attendant flipped the motor switch, but hesitated, eyeing the old man's ancient fibreglas rod and aluminum reel.

"I'm sorry, sir," he said, "but the state prefers that you use the catchers supplied."

He reached to a rack and took a short, shiny beryllium rod with built-in winch from its bracket. Then, with a professional smile (the state slogan-of-the-week was 'keep smiling!') but with cold eyes, he watched the boat glide away from the marina.

As it rounded the jetty corner and straightened away for the fishing ground, the attendant ducked his chin and spoke into the microphone that dangled around his neck.

"Keep an eye on Boat 13, Joe," he said. "The old guy in it could be a subversive."

The patrol boat skipper returned him a crisp, "Will do."

Meanwhile, the old man and the boy had hooked on to the can that marked their alloted slot in Fishing Station No. 56, a carefully-nurtured kelp bed a quarter-mile offshore. The station was a marvel of scientific ingenuity. Powerful sequences of jets circulated its pure salt water and kept the polluted, dead waste of the surrounding sea at bay.

The boy peered overside. He was excited: was, in fact, trembling with eagerness. The old man smiled. His grandson had lived in a state of excitement since word had arrived that their ticket in a state lottery had rewarded them with a rare and wonderful prize . . . a half-day on Fishing Station 56, all expenses paid.

The old man slipped their permit from his pocket and glanced at it.

The rules were explicit. They were allowed to catch and keep one rockfish from the fishing station stock.

The old man passed the catcher to the boy.

"You fish," he said. "Me, I'd sooner just set here." His eyes roved his surroundings. The kelp-heads floated in a glassy calm. To seaward, a light mist blurred the horizon. Water and sky were the same milky hot-weather blue. It was very like old times.

The old man reached a hand to the lever that controlled their communicator. He nudged the lever into 'closed'.

The boy frowned. "You're supposed to leave that open," he said. "So They can listen."

"Let's say I joggled it shut by accident," the old man said with a vinegary smile.

The past had claimed him. Once again, the year was 1980, most of a lifetime distant now, and he was out in a boat with his own father, charged with this same excitement that his grandson knew.

"My dad used to take me fishing," he said. "Only we didn't go after rockfish." His voice was quiet, his gaze on the blending of sky and sea. "We fished for salmon."

The boy gave him a puzzled glance. He asked, "What's salmon?"

"A wonderful fish," the old man told him. " 'Salta-vit et Placuit'. That's Latin, that is. It's the dancer Salome's epitaph. 'Means She danced and pleased.' You hook a salmon on light tackle and I tell you it was like you were tied to a bolt of silver lightning." He withdrew his scrutiny from the horizon, and centred it on the boy.

Only he didn't really see his grandson, so patiently jigging for the rockfish which the law allowed him. He saw himself, with bent rod and screaming reel, playing a coho salmon.

"Long gone now," he said. " 'Doubt there's been a salmon seen in the last seventy years. They killed 'em off. Slaughtered them like there was no tomorrow. Overfished them. Ruined their spawning streams. Why, they even starved 'em to death by mopping up all the herring!"

The boy listened, deeply shocked. Such speech was not permitted. The state frowned on reminiscences of the bad old days. As a Child of the New Order, his duty was plain. Stealthily, he reached for the communicator switch and flicked it on.

"Who did all this, Gramps?" he prodded. "Who's the 'they' you keep talking about?"

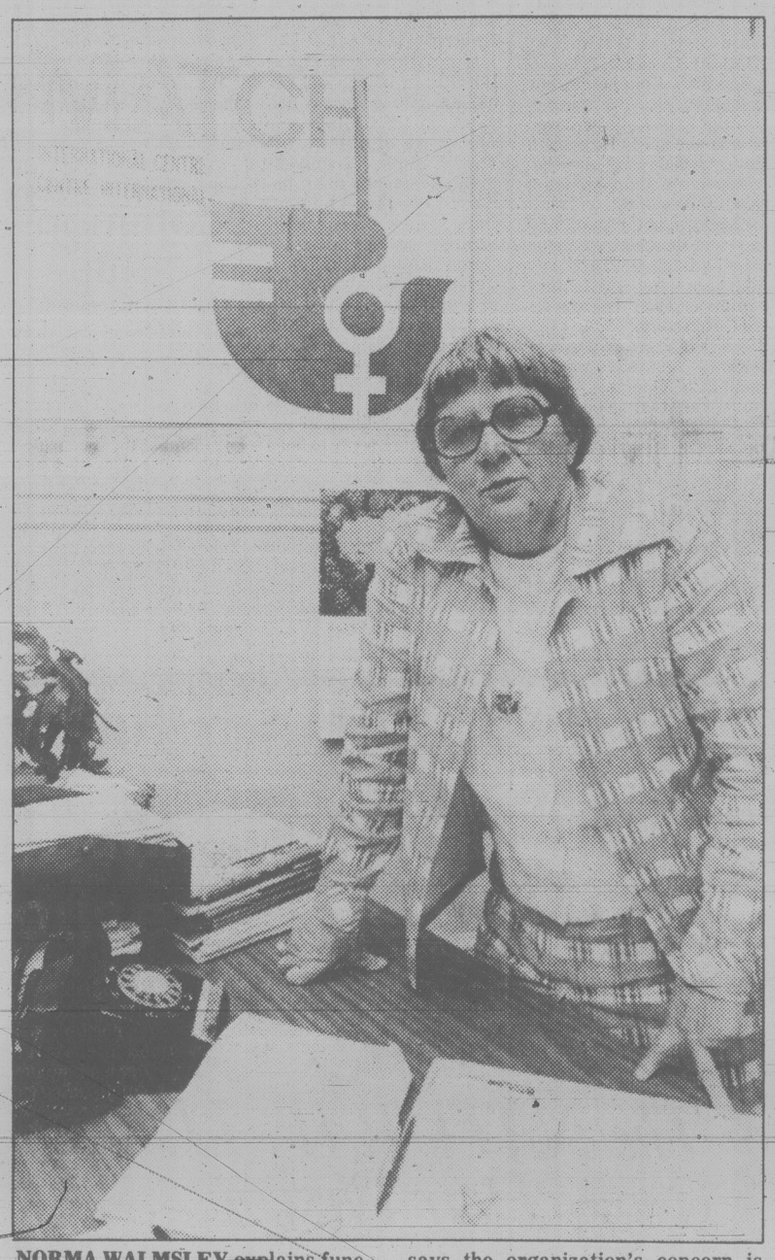
The old man stood up in the boat. He towered, spread-legged, and his face was like a thundercloud.

"Why, the state!" he growled. "Who d'you think? The bloody, wasteful, short-sighted, weak-kneed stupid state! The state could have prevented it. We could have saved the salmon. Instead, the state, damn it to hell-an'-gone, let 'em be wiped out!"

He broke off to stare at the approaching patrol-boat. It bore in on them fast, turned, and slid alongside. Two uniformed men reached over, seized the old man one by each arm, and dragged him into the patrol vessel. The government-grey cruiser foamed away. The boy, still patiently jigging for his rockfish, watched it recede.

He'd miss the old fellow's chatter. But this time, he'd gone too far. All that subversive nonsense about the salmon!

Canadians part of progress



NORMA WALMSLEY explains functions of M.A.T.C.H. International Centre at her office in Ottawa. She says the organization's concern is with Third World projects too small to be considered by government bodies.

In Copenhagen on Wednesday the World Conference of the United Nations Decade for Women will end.

Since convening July 14 — and despite demonstrations, protest marches and attempts to politicize the debates — it has assessed progress made in improving the situation of women during the first five years of the decade (1976-1985) and brought into the light obstacles that are hindering implementation of the World Plan of Action for the Advancement of Women, adopted at the 1975 Mexico conference.

It has also managed to produce draft resolutions that outline an action-oriented program for the next five years of the decade, with specific emphasis on the areas of employment, health and education.

A parallel activity, the Mid-Decade Forum, organized by members of non-governmental organizations, has also been held during the conference.

Attendance throughout the two weeks has been restricted, as you will understand, to representatives of governments and the United Nations and inter-governmental and non-governmental organizations with official status at the UN.

Lloyd Axworthy, minister of state for the status of women and Mark McGuigan, secretary of state for external affairs, head the Canadian delegation.

Canadian women in the delegation include Maureen O'Neil, Status of Women Canada co-ordinator; Lise Payette, Quebec's ministre d'Etat a la Condition femine; Mable Deware, New Brunswick's minister of labor and manpower; Lynn Verge, Newfoundland's minister of education; the Hon. Therese Casgrain; Norma Walmsley, M.A.T.C.H. international centre president; Pauline Jewett, NDP status of women critic.

Doris Anderson, Canadian Advisory Council on the Status of Women president; Mary Eady, national representative for the Canadian Labor Congress Women's Bureau; Lynn McDonald, president of the National Action Committee on the Status of Women; Gabrielle Hotte, president of the Federation des Femmes du Quebec and Louise Holmes, Status of Women Canada conference co-ordinator.

Others in the delegation are Walter McLean, Status of Women critic for the Progressive Conservative Party; Paul Lapointe, director general, Bureau of United Nations Affairs in the Department of External Affairs and Daniel J. Livermore, second secretary, Permanent Mission of Canada to the United Nations (New York) department of external affairs.

Now let us look at names of Canadian delegates at the NGO Forum and the 10 national women's groups they represent.

Dr. Margaret Fulton, Halifax, Canadian Committee on Learning Opportunities for Women; Lila Goodspeed, Winnipeg, Federation of Junior Leagues of Canada; Micheline Villemure, Grand' Mere, Que., Association Feminine D'Education et D'Action Sociale; Doreen Kissick, Fredericton, N.B., National Council of Women of Canada.

Dr. Geraldine Farmer, Edmonton, Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs; Isabel Palmeter, Windsor, N.S., Canadian Teachers Federation; Judith Ramirez, Toronto, Immigrant Women's Centre; Muriel Duckworth, Austin, Que., Canadian Research Institute for the Advancement of Women; Pat Preston, Calgary, National Action Committee, and Mona G. Brown, Sperling, Man., National Association of Women and the Law.

Purpose of the forum, held July 14 to 24, was to enable women and men, from all geographic areas and diverse backgrounds to exchange information on the present situation of women.

Also to devise strategies for change, particularly in those areas under discusson at the conference.

Postscript: I've given you the names of those in the Canadian delegation, and the NGO Forum because I believe every woman in this area who is active, one way or another, in working to improve the situation of women, will be interested in knowing who has been representing her at this important mid-term world conference of the United Nations Decade for Women.

My apologies if I'm wrong.

Medics add a wrinkle to their profile

By DR. BOB YOUNG

Every newspaper in British Columbia is running a series of advertisements sponsored by the doctors of the province. These ads, which will run sporadically over the next few months, are a departure from the low profile usually associated with medical associations.

It is an old saw that patients like their own doctor, and may even accept the consultants their doctor chooses for them while disliking (or not trusting) the profession as a whole. Many professions (law, dentistry, even teaching) seem to have difficulty with their public image.

The newspaper ads are not designed to change the profession's image — if they do so it will be a bonus. Nor are they an attempt to get more business for the doctors — most are too busy now!

The goal of physicians and surgeons is the maintenance of people's health. This is also the aim of patients — that they remain healthy and well. Much of staying healthy depends on the individual and some of our ads stress proper lifestyle.

Much serious disease can be prevented by such things as vaccination and other measures. Our ads remind people of this fact and will perhaps stimulate some to update their own (and especially their children's) innoculations.

Even if everyone engaged in a completely healthy lifestyle and utilized all available disease prevention methods, there would still be sickness. Our public awareness campaign points out the appropriateness of seeking knowledgeable advice, that is the advie of a medical doctor, when illness occurs. No other health care provider is as completely trained as is the physician.

Finally, the advertisements ask for your help in maintaining the quality of care available in B.C. Modern health care is expensive and governments are not always generous in providing funding. Doctors also depend upon the government for payment of their fees, and job satisfaction and quality of work done is usually related to the appropriateness of the compensation received.

The health of the people remains our primary concern. As the advertisements say — "Help Us Help You."

What is a Mother's Helper? It's a fabric wall hanging with pockets which may be hung above baby's changing table.

It's bright, simple to make, and will bring smiles from baby and visitors alike.

Other uses for this fun, applique project are as a bear crib-quilt or pillow, as a chair cushion or diaper stacker. Older children may want to use the wall-hanging as a place to keep crayons or other treasures.

Complete directions are given as well as actual-sized pattern pieces, plus a full-color illustration of the items made up in various color schemes. These are projects that use a wide variety of fabric combinations — a great way to use up scraps left over from other sewing projects. Or you can have fun picking out small bits from fabric-store remnant bins.

A background stabilizer is useful, too, for doing machine embroidery. And a non-woven fusible, interfacing is used for making the machine applique simpler.

You simply cut small pieces of it, place it under the applique piece and iron; it holds the top layer of fabric just where you want it without shifting so you can machine applique with ease.

A zig-zag sewing machine is a must for this type of work. If you don't often use the features present on most of the new models, perhaps a pattern such as this will get you going. They're quick to cut out, fast to sew, and make adorable designs for the nursery, playroom or bath.

Even if you don't use the little pockets, a wall hanging such as these is most welcome for decoration.

Choose either the Bear or Turtle version, or both. These would be an excellent new-mother's gift, or a baby-shower present.

Get together with friends and make them in quantity for fall bazaars! Pool your sewing scraps for variety!

Both bear and turtle versions come complete with patterns for ruffled bonnet or gentleman's hat (turtle) and ruffly apron and long eyelashes or gentleman's vest and handkerchief (bear) for those wishing to make the items for boy or girl babies.

TECHNIQUE BOOK: The Yours Truly company, of Atlanta, Ga., has done much to advance the quality and variety of patchwork and quilting articles available today. They have supported young artists and designers in many areas.

One of these is Barbara Lee, who has developed many techniques for successful machine applique. Yours Truly, Inc. has published her techniques, along with dozens of full-color illustrations and photos, in a book by the same name. (Successful Machine Applique, by Barbara Lee, 48 pg., soft cover, $6.50.)

If you are interested in these methods of making pictures with fabrics using your zig-zag sewing machine, this booklet will aid your quest for quality.

When you can take lessons, in booklet form, from practising expert/artists, it can make all the difference — turn a so-so project that frustrates into a rewarding medium of expression by learning the correct, easy techniques of this talented lady.

#3715: Bear Mother's Helper, $3.99.

#3713: Turtle Mother's Helper, $3.99.

New therapy found for stroke victims

EDMONTON (CP) — Barbara Vasey wiggled the fingers of her right hand for the first time in six years Tuesday.

The former stewardess suffered a massive stroke when she was 26. She has made considerable progress during six years of therapy but is hampered by a spastic arm and leg.

Her small victory took place at the Good Samaritan Auxiliary Hospital, where she receives unique therapy that may lead to greater muscle control for many stroke victims. Ms. Vasey hopes to replace a heavy shoe and brace she now wears with a high-heeled pump thi3 fall.

The therapy, developed by occupational therapist Masako Walley, is an attempt to reduce spasticity — the crippling, painful effect of stroke which impairs normal functions of the arms and legs.

It is a combination of deep pressure vibration, brushing and tapping Mrs. Walley said can make a difference to a stroke sufferer within a week.

She has received a $40,000 grant from the Medical Services Foundation of Alberta to document her techniques but needs to study more stroke sufferers.

"I'm quite desperate," said Mrs. Walley, a lecturer at the University of Alberta faculty of rehabilitative medicine. "This is a very effective technique — we need to have subjects."

The documentation will include videotapes of patients, records oftheir level of muscle activity and intensity of stimulation. Her findings will be presented next year at an international brain research conference in Colorado.,

Mrs. Walley is looking for 20 people, of any age, who have had major strokes a year to 18 months ago and now suffer from spasticity.

Volunteers must be able to follow commands and be willing to come in for daily 15-minute treatments at the Good Samaritan for four weeks.

RICHMOND, Va. (CP) - Shirley Chappell of Toronto, the world's latest heart transplant patient, has surprised her doctors with a craving for pizza and beer.

Twenty-four hours after receiving a new heart, Mrs. Chappell, 45, sat up in bed Friday and said: "I'd like a large pizza and glass of Molson's Light beer more than anything else in the world."

But Mrs. Chappell, a mother of four, will have to wait a while for her feast.

She is on a liquids-only diet in the intensive care unit at the Medical College of Virginia, where she will remain for two or three weeks. And beer isn't on the hospital menu.

"She hasn't able been able to eat pizzas for quite a few years because she has been on a low-salt diet," said her sister-in-law, Dorothy Graham, who visited Mrs. Chappell in her room Friday.

"But I know she's missed it and she said today she'd love a beer and a large pizza more than anything else in the world."

Doctors are maintaining a round-the-clock watch on Mrs. Chappell. They say she is making satisfactory progress after her operation Thursday.

She is given a 60-per-cent chance of surviving the next three months.

"We are taking it one day at a time," said her cardiologist, Dr. Michael Hess.

"We laughed and chatted and there were a few tears," Mrs. Graham said of her visit. "Shirley is still very weak, but she was asking me to bring her a book and her knitting. And she wanted a television set and a radio."

Mrs. Chappell has been told she will be able to enjoy that pizza and beer when she gets home, Mrs. Graham said.

Meanwhile, Michael Rowatt, an 18-year-old Canadian Armed Forces private from CFB Borden who was the donor of the heart Mrs. Chappell received, was buried today in his native Richard's Landing, Ont., 32 kilometres east of Sault Ste. Marie.

Rowatt died Thursday at Toronto General Hospital of injuries he received in a car accident near Collingwood, Ont., Wednesday.

His father, Neil, said Rowatt had decided to donate his heart to science two years ago when he obtained his driver's licence and filled in the attached donor permission card.

Surgeons from Richmond flew to Toronto to remove Rowatt's heart and quickly returned to perform the operation on Mrs. Chappell, who had flown to Virginia last week.

Surgeons in Canada are no longer performing heart transplants. Mrs. Chappell had developed a rare heart disease as a result of a pregnancy.

Without the transplant she could have expected to live only six months, doctors said.

Use it, don't lose it — vinegar from dill pickles or pickled beets makes a new, exciting salad vinegar with added oil. Mix the last of two dried cereals for a new breakfast flavor. A little mayonnaise added to drained, chopped pickle makes a tasty tartar sauce. Remove fat from the top of meat drippings and freeze the protein-rich juice for soup later.

THROUGH THIN AND THIN: Eunice Huff can't exactly spread her wings between the shelves inside thw doorway to the reading-TV room of her rowhouse in Toronto's Yorkville district. And that's no wonder: the house itself is only 2.5 metres (eight feet, six inches) wide and 12 metres (40 feet) deep! Eunice has to keep things pretty shipshape with space so much at a premium, but there are advantages to the cosy, Victorian-era cottage — not least the relatively modest property tax assessment . . .

leslie holbrook

Summer sun is not for seniors. Too much sun is not good for anyone but older people should be particularly careful to shield skin from sunlight, especially during the hot weather months and, most of all, during midday cloudless hours.

Your skin is the envelope in which you live. "It undergoes changes with age," warned Dr. George M. Merry, Kingston geriatrician, when I discussed with him protective and preventive measures you can take to safeguard your skin from the environment.

"The skin ages due to cumulative insults and exposures from chemicals and sunlight," Dr. Merry said. "Genetic background and general health infuence the aging process. The skin becomes dryer and thinner due to structural changes in the skin itself and in tissues below the skin such as fat.

"Sweating is reduced because of a decrease in the number of glands. Skin thickness is decreased as is the moisture content in the skin. Pliability and resiliency are reduced even to the finger pads. On the head there are fewer hair follicles; the hair often is finer and thinner. Cells associated with tanning diminish and become clustered together, producing aging spots. These changes have the effect of modifying the skin's response to injury, temperature changes and infection.

"Prolonged exposure to the sun's rays can cause skin cancer. Because skin cancer may create no early problems it may be overlooked or purposely hidden from the doctor because of fear. In the older patient particularly, any new growth or change in an existing lesion on the skin should be regarded with suspicion."

On this point, Dr. Merry had good news: "Any lesion on the skin which changes color, size or breaks down, or any lesion that causes the patient concern can be easily, painlessly and accurately checked out by your physician. Almost all of the skin cancers are curable or responsive to therapy."

Concerning the business of getting a sun tan (either with Nature's help or in those sun-tanning salons sprouting up all over the place) the Kingston doctor said: "A tan will not return that youthful look and in fact may potentiate some of the aging changes in the skin.

"I repeat that uncovered skin ages faster than protected skin so on sunny days wear a hat — particularly on a balding head — and cover the skin as much as is practically possible.

"Uncontrolled sun bathing should be avoided. If prolonged exposure to sunlight is unavoidable or skin areas are unprotected, there are ultra-violet screening agents which help to protect you; get your doctor's recommendation.

"Avoidance of dehydration of the skin is recommended for all seasons because dry skin produces itching and subsequent injury to the skin, leading to skin breakdown. Adequate nutrition can help prevent loss of moisture. There are agents your doctor can tell you about which help to hydrate the skin. But a word of warning about popular locations and creams: No medication or cream removes wrinkles and the skin, as it changes with age, becomes less resilient to lotions and potions rubbed on it."

Four win UVic law awards

Two men and two women each have won $4,500 law entrance scholarships to University of Victoria, topping 40 applicants from across the country.

They are Allan Seckel and Deborah Trenholm, both Simon Fraser University graduates and Vancouver residents; Lauri Fenlon, a Queen's University grad from Thunder Bay, and S. Ronald Stevenson, 1978 Rhodes scholar from Newfoundland and a graduate of Memorial University, St. John's.

Scholarships are provided by the Law Foundation of B.C. and are re-newable with achievement of first-class standing in each of the three years of law studies.

Seckel, a consistent scholarship winner at SFU, graduated in economics and commerce and won distinction for having the highest academic standing on the varsity basketball team.

Trenholm is a criminology graduate, was active in student affairs and also was an undergraduate scholarship winner.

Fenlon took an honors degree in arts and won scholarships for her standings, including distinction in psychology.

Stevenson studied political science, in which he took a gold medal and was awarded a scholarship at Memorial. For the past two years he has been working on a master's degree in philosophy at Oxford.

Jail guards angry but return to work

EDMONTON (CP) — Jail guards returned to work late Sunday and liquor warehouse workers were due back on the job today, ending almost a month of illegal walkouts by 3,500 Alberta government employees.

But John Booth, president of the Alberta Union of Provincial Employees, warned that the walkouts could start again unless serious negotiations begin this week.

The union also wants to re-open contract talks with the Alberta liquor control board instead of going to scheduled binding arbitration.

Spokesman Dale Gardner said a slim majority of the 1,000 guards voted Friday to return to work for the 11 p.m. shift Sunday. The guards had walked off the job at nine correctional institutes July 7 despite government anti-strike legislation.

Booth said the government could interpret the vote as warning that a satisfactory wage settlement must come soon to avoid other illegal walkouts. The guards want increases of about $400 a month to match guards in British Columbia.

The union asked the liquor warehouse and 2,000 clerical workers, who left their jobs a week earlier, to return to work Friday. The call came shortly before a Court of Queen's Bench decision upheld the government's anti-strike legislation as legal.

Booth said some members were angered and confused by the back-to-work request, feeling that more pressure should have been placed on the government.

But "we were in a Mexican stand-off," he said.

Bravery awards outlined

Saanich council will give bravery awards in three categories for outstanding service by residents.

A medal for bravery will be given "for the performance of an act of extraordinary bravery going beyond the call of duty and involving danger of death."

An award for courage will conferred on a person for an act of great courage above the call of duty and involving the possibility of serious injury.

The third category, a letter of commendation, will be presented for an act of bravery in which the danger of death or serious injury is remote.

Kentucky quake shakes Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — The earth moved for some people in southwestern Ontario on Sunday afternoon. And it wasn't their imagination.

Residents reporting earth tremors flooded police and radio stations with phone calls to ask what was going on.

The tremors originated from an earthquake in the U.S. and shook houses and other buildings in seven states from northern Kentucky to Ohio and Michigan.

The tremors were felt in Ontario from the London, St. Thomas and Sarnia areas, through Kitchener-Waterloo and Toronto and as far north as Barrie.

There were no reports of injuries or damage in Ontario, but there were unconfirmed reports of minor damage in Cincinnati, Ohio.

A spokesman for the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Col., said initial seismograph readings showed the earthquake had a magnitude of 5.8 on the Richter scale.

It shook an area from Alabama to southern Canada and from Illinois to North Carolina for 15 about seconds, causing some damage. The quake toppled chimneys, fractured building foundations, broke windows, and just plain terrified people.

Seismologists said it was centered in Marysville, Ky. — about 75 kilometres southeast of Cincinnati — believed to be the first ever centered in northern Kentucky.

State emergency officials estimated 200 homes and businesses were damaged.

In Washington State, meanwhile, slight rumblings were detected again in the region around Mount St. Helens but none of the seismic activity was considered significant by geologists.

3,500 flee gas threat

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP) — Mop-up operations are continuing at the site of a fire in the northeast residential section of this western Manitoba city that twice sent 3,500 of the community's 13,500 residents fleeing from their homes during the weekend.

The evacuations were ordered after a fire at Westco Storage Ltd. threatened to rupture two tanks containing 2,000 pounds of ammonia, a non-lethal gas.

The cause of the fire was not immediately known and no injuries were reported. An RCMP spokesman estimated damage at between $18 million and $20 million.

The residents, ordered out of their homes shortly after the fire began, were allowed to return the first time "because we thought we had it nipped," said Ab MacDonald, Portage La Prairie fire chief.

When the fire flared up again late Saturday night, a second evacuation of the 10-block area was ordered.

Que. students slain in Mexico

MONTREAL (CP) — The bodies of two 20-year-old Montreal law students found last week in a Mexico desert have been identified as Nobert Vaglia and Stephane Parent by the fathers of the two.

Joseph Vaglia said during the weekend that Mexican police believe his son and Parent were murdered by drug traffickers.

Their bodies were found buried in a shallow grave following a tip from two Mexicans who had been arrested for possession of marijuana and a pistol. The Mexicans also told police that two well-known drug traffickers were responsible for the killings.

However, Vaglia said he believes his son was killed "in cold blood" after being ambushed by robbers.

Noted teacher dies

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Dr. L. Bernice MacNaughton, a well-known Moncton teacher who taught for 50 years before her retirement in 1965, died in hospital here Saturday after an illness. She was in her 80s.

Dr. MacNaughton became the first woman president of the Canadian Teachers Federation when she was elected to the post in 1949. She was also a a fellow of the Canadian College of Teachers.

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawrence Day, 31, of Toronto, an international master and professional chess player, topped more than 200 other competitors from Canada and the United States to win the 17th annual Canadian Open Chess Championship.

He won eight games, drew one and lost one during the nine-day tournament.

Tied for second were Bruce Harper of Vancouver, Martin Buchholz of Toronto and Jim Bagley of Florida.

Watchdog Richards Report #180. Congratulations to Mayor Bill Tindall on the way he chaired the Trade and Convention Centre Public Hearing last Wednesday, even when at times the Hearing threatened to get out of hand. Also congratulations go to Fraser McAlpine for escorting all those ladies on Victoria Radio CJVI's Fun Flight to Seattle aboard the "Flying Princess" Saturday July 19th. The only one thing wrong with the day excursion was when we returned on the "Victoria Princess" it proved that this boat is a very poor substitute for the "Princess Marguerite". Let us hope that the Provincial Government will act quickly on Victoria City Council's request to have the "Princess Marguerite" operate on the Victoria-Seattle run commencing as soon as possible. If you wish further information regarding municipal matters please phone 383-6259 Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards or write PO Box 154. Postscript: Lets protect the Victoria City's Harbour from becoming a skyline of tombstones which ocurred in San Francisco between 1959 and 1970.

ROWLAND - Nothing can ever take

Shah — from powerful ruler to pathetic figure

By DON A. SCHANCHE
The Los Angeles Times

CAIRO — The shah of Iran was hailed by some as a tough but progressive leader of a backward country and reviled by many as one of the worst tyrants of modern times.

The self-styled title under which Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi ruled Iran for 37 years — His Imperial Majesty, Light of the Aryans, King of Kings — was as exaggerated as the excesses of power that finally brought him down.

When he died in a Cairo hospital Sunday at age 60, he was an almost pathetic figure, detested by most of his former subjects, shunned by the world leaders with whom he had hobnobbed and, despite a huge personal fortune, powerless to choose even a place of exile.

When he fled Iran to refuge in Egypt on Jan. 16, 1979, at the height of the revolution led by the Ayatollah Khomeini, the shah pretended that his exile was only temporary. He stayed briefly in Morocco and the Bahamas before settling into seclusion at the Mexican resort of Cuernavaca.

Not until he flew to New York in October of that year, for emergency surgery and treatment of lymphatic cancer, did the world learn that he had been a sick man for six years.

And, more important, his arrival in the United States touched off the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran by militant students and the seizure of 53 American hostages.

After his treatment in New York, the shah flew to Panama and last March, at the personal invitation of President Anwar Sadat, returned to Egypt, where he underwent surgery for removal of a cancerous spleen.

To most Iranians, the shah was a tyrant. The SAVAK, his secret police, arrested, tortured and killed untold thousands.

Shah of Iran in full military regalia

Empress Farah in Morocco after exile

Yet despite his excesses, including the expenditure of billions of dollars on unneeded U.S. and British arms at a time when most Iranians lived in abject poverty, the shah was hailed by many observers as a leader seeking to bring the benefits of the 20th Century to a backward, almost medieval society.

Sought industry

He invested tens of billions in ambitious development projects that he believed would turn Iran into a rich industrial nation. To spur land reform he gave away part of his own vast landholdings. With the aid of his empress, Farah, he championed women's rights in a traditionally male-dominated society and made halting attempts, first at the urging of John F. Kennedy and later of Jimmy Carter, to liberalize political life.

But as each faltering step toward liberalization released pent-up demands for more radical change, the shah pulled back, sent SAVAK agents after his opponents and repelled demonstrators with army bullets.

As social and political dissatisfaction escalated into convulsive violence in 1977 and 1978, the shah continued to surround himself and his royal followers with a splendor unmatched in Persia since the days of Cyrus the Great, half a millennium before the birth of Christ.

To many Iranians and Westerners as well, the shah's personal extravagance and conceit reached a high point in October 1971, when he had the ancient Persian capital of Persepolis, which was destroyed in 331 BC by Alexander The Great, refurbished for the lavish celebration of what he said was the 2,500th anniversary of the Persian monarchy. Between 600 and 1,000 opponents of the regime were jailed as a security precaution before the event. The cost of the opulent party, which drew guests at Iranian expense from all over the world, is said to have been $300 million.

Split personality

A British diplomat who saw the shah frequently during his last years of power said he appeared to be a split personality, a quiet, sometimes insecure private man on the one hand and a forceful, often ruthless imperial leader on the other.

"It's as if he has to work at keeping up the appearances of an emperor," the man said.

Associates who knew the shah's family from the time of his father, Shah Reza the Great, said the split personality grew out of a massive inferiority complex that began to take shape in childhood.

Although the details of his birth are sketchy, one widely accepted version has it that he and his twin sister, Ashraf, were born Oct. 26, 1919, in a rundown house in the red-light district of South Tehran. According to this story, it was all their soldier-father, Reza Khan, a semiliterate Cossack who rose from the enlisted ranks to colonel, could afford at the time.

But the family fortunes soon changed. In 1921 Reza led a military coup (the former Shah Mohammed Ali had abdicated 12 years earlier). In 1923 he became prime minister and in 1925 he was crowned Shah Reza the Great, beginning the two-generation Pahlavi dynasty.

A giant of a man at 6 feet 6, the man who was known as Reza Shah towered over those around him, especially over his slightly built son, whose timidity is said to have dismayed the old shah. Family friends recalled that the shah favored his daughter Ashraf, who was more spirited and outgoing than young Mohammed Reza.

Conscious of his own lack of education, Shah Reza is said to have devoted much attention to the training of his son, first by tutors, then by military instructors and finally at an elegant Swiss preparatory school, Le Rosey Academy, where the future shah learned European manners and became something of a playboy.

The shah wrote years later that he formed his ideas for the modernization of Iran while at Le Rosey, concluding "that discipline without democracy is authoritarianism, and that democracy without discipline is anarchy." By either standard he could justify maintaining absolute power in the hands of the monarch.

Until the month before his 22nd birthday, the future shah lived a double life, alternating between fast cars and women in Europe and a sober military life at home. Then, on Sept. 16, 1941, Reza Shah, a German sympathizer, was forced by invading allied forces to abdicate in favor of his son.

The sudden and unexpected accession to power brought the impressionable young shah into contact with Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin, all of whom influenced him, the monarch once wrote. A difficult home life in the royal palace also exercised a profound influence, associates said.

Prince born

Shortly after his divorce from his second wife, the shah was introduced by Ardeshir Zahedi, later to become his ambassador to Washington, to Farah Diba, an Iranian architectural student in Paris. They were married in December 1959. Prince Reza was born less than two years later, followed by Princesses Farahnaz and Layla, and Prince Alireza.

The shah's political life, meanwhile, was as troubled as his family life. For a time he cut a heroic figure. In 1946 he personally led Iranian troops against Soviet forces then occupying the province of Azerbaijan, regaining the territory in subsequent negotiations.

Three years later an assassin, posing as a photographer on a news assignment, fired five shots at him from close range. Two bullets grazed his body, two missed and one ripped through his cheek and upper lip, leaving his features slightly askew. Witnesses said the monarch calmly walked away as his bodyguards killed the gunman, and drove himself to a military hospital for emergency attention. Then he immediately made a broadcast to the nation to prove that his wounds were slight.

Crisis over oil

In the early 1950s a crisis over exploitation of the oil that made Iran rich almost cost the shah his throne. His prime minister, Mohammed Mossadegh, nationalized British and U.S. oil interests in 1951 and then, in 1953, after increasing estrangement from the shah, triggered an international crisis by refusing to pay compensation.

In the turmoil of August 1953, the shah fled to safety in Europe on the advice of Kermit Roosevelt who was the regional CIA chief.

Within three days, Mossadegh was overthrown after massive demonstrations reportedly organized and paid for by the CIA. The shah returned under the protection of Roosevelt and an Iranian army general named Zahedi, father of the man who later became Iranian ambassador to the United States.

Another key figure of the time who rallied army support for the shah against Mossadegh was Gen. Nematollah Nasiri, who was rewarded with the command of SAVAK, the secret police. With the shah's apparent blessing, Nasiri cracked down so ruthlessly on dissenters that by 1975 Amnesty International, the London-based human rights organization, said "no country in the world has a worse record in human rights than Iran."

The shah spent an estimated $36 billion equipping his 400,000-man armed forces, and poured even more billions into development schemes. The huge expenditures offered ripe opportunities for corruption by members of the Royal Family, military officers and palace favorites. Bribes of tens of millions of dollars were made routinely in exchange for contracts with arms suppliers and other merchants.

The shah's apologists insisted that he was too preoccupied with development plans to take note of the repression and corruption, and that his imperial status so isolated him from the people that he did not know what was happening.

Beyond control

Those who saw him regularly near the end of his reign said an apparent breakdown of his personality occurred when he finally realized that the situation in Iran had gone beyond his control.

"It was as if he had suffered a stroke," said a Western ambassador who called on the shah frequently.

Revisions for history in unpublished book

NEW YORK (UPI) — The deposed shah of Iran spent the final weeks of his life making last minute revisions to his forthcoming memoir, Answer to History, in which he is highly critical of the United States, his publisher said Sunday.

"The United States comes off extremely badly," said Sol Stein, president of Stein and Day, which is publishing Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's account of his rise and fall from the Peacock Throne. "Particularly with regard to the Soviet Union, the shah thought he was performing as a loyal ally and obviously found out to the contrary."

Other villains included Jimmy Carter, the Ayatollah Khomeini, and the communists, Stein said. "It is a book full of heroes and villains," Stein said.

He said the deposed monarch delivered the basic draft of the memoir a week before entering the Maadi hospital in Cairo and continued making last minute revisions "up through the last week" before his death Sunday.

"He sees two enemies in Iran. First there is the self-serving clergy and on the other hand there are the communist forces."

"He thinks 1983 will be the apogee of Soviet strength because the West will not be able to cope with it," he said.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger received favorable reviews in the ex-shah's memoirs, Stein said. Pahlavi felt Kissinger was appreciative of his anti-communist position, Stein said.

Carter's problems grow

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Rep. Michael D. Barnes (Dem.—Md.) leader of the congressional movement to force an open Democratic convention, predicted Sunday that he would have the support of up to 150 House Democrats — three times the initial number — by today and that several "political heavyweights" will soon climb aboard.

Barnes, interviewed on NBC-TV's Meet the Press, predicted that it would be "extraordinarily difficult" for President Carter to be re-elected but he also said it was "extraordinarly unlikely" that delegates now pledged to Carter would turn to Sen. Edward Kennedy if the convention were thrown open.

Such a convention would free delegates now pledged to Carter or Senator Edward Kennedy and allow them to vote for whomever they wished.

Kennedy said Sunday he continues to favor an open convention but presidential spokesman Jody Powell cautioned Democratic members of Congress against judging the president's troubles with brother Billy until all the facts are in.

A special Senate subcommittee opens an investigation Thursday into Billy's dealings with Libya and the president himself could be called to testify. At the very least, the investigation will raise embarrassing questions about the president's brother — and the president's administration.

The president has promised the nine-member Senate panel full co-operation.

Thousands flee gas train blast

Times News Services

MULDRAUGH, Ky. — Two thousand evacuated residents of this Kentucky community may not be able to return to their homes until Wednesday, officials say, and then only if the fires in three derailed tank cars of toxic vinyl chloride have burned out.

State officials feared today that heavy rain might fall over the scene, forcing chemical vapors closer to the ground and forcing another round of evacuations.

More than 7,500 people, mostly from Muldraugh and nearby Fort Knox, where the U.S. gold reserves are stored, were evacuated after the loaded tanker cars of a 37-car Illinois Central Gulf train jumped the track in a residential section early Saturday.

Within an hour, this town 50 kilometres southwest of Louisville was deserted. All but 2,000 residents of the immediate area were allowed to return to their homes by late Saturday.

About 400 of the evacuated residents were sheltered at the Valley Station High School in Jefferson County.

One of the evacuees at the high school couldn't eat any of the 700 pieces of Kentucky Fried Chicken shipped there during the weekend because his mouth was wired shut.

Army Sgt. Dale Wilcox, who recently had jaw surgery after a motorcycle accident, was given an state police escort to his home in the deserted town to get a can of strained beef noodle soup.

The train, known as the "chemical dispatch," was en route from Memphis, Tenn., to Louisville when it jumped the tracks less than 90 metres from Muldraugh's Main Street.

A tank car carrying vinyl chloride exploded a few minutes after the derailment, and at least four other cars were quickly enveloped in flames.

Quiet night in Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Officials said today a curfew will be lifted after this racially torn city passed its third consecutive quiet night. Twenty-seven more people were arrested for curfew violations overnight, but no serious trouble was reported. Police reported the quietest night since Tuesday, and officials said a three-night-old curfew will be lifted today.

Pro-Iraqi politician shot dead

BEIRUT (UPI) — Unidentified gunmen today ambushed a pro-Iraqi politician, riddling him and his bodyguard with bullets in the latest of the region's almost daily political assassinations.

Police sources said Mussa Shueib, a top official of the Lebanese chapter of Iraq's ruling Baath party was driving from Beirut airport when his car was overtaken by armed men and sprayed with gunfire in a gangland-style "hit."

Shueib and his bodyguard died on the spot. The assassins escaped and police said they had no clues as to their identity.

The murder of Shueib came less than 24 hours after an Iraqi diplomat was killed in Abu Dhabi by a bomb explosion. Hussam Mohammed, second secretary of the Iraqi Embassy in the United Arab Emirates, was in his home late Sunday when a bomb blast ripped through the residence, killing him and wounding two others.

Police in Abu Dhabi said they had no motive for the crime but the state-owned Iraqi news agency blamed "agents of the racist regime" — a reference to Iran — for the attack.

Olympics rampage

MOSCOW (UPI) — Western athletes rampaged through the Olympic Village in the pre-dawn hours today to protest the closing of a discotheque.

There were reports that some of them shouted "Free Afghanistan!" during the food-throwing and shouting incident, but evidently all the Australians, Brazilians, Britons, French and Swedes really were protesting was the 11 p.m. closing time at the disco in the closely guarded compound.

Soviet police ended the disturbance two hours after it began.

Witnesses said at one point several athletes began shouting "Liberate Afghanistan!" but Swedish Olympic sources said the chants apparently were misheard.

Witnesses said the most likely reason for the incident simply was boredom. Most athletes have been in Moscow since before the Games began July 19 and the biggest diversion at the tightly guarded Olympic village is the disco.

"Many of the sports finished yesterday — swimming and some of the others — and the athletes wanted to dance," said Salvador Sobrino, a Mexican diver. "The music stopped and everyone wanted to keep dancing.

"Some people were sitting on the floor and they started shouting, when I saw that I left to go to my room."

Most of the athletes in the crowded second-floor disco did the same, but witnesses said about 40 competitors marched across the sprawling grounds to a food hall.

Soviet guards moved in twice. The first time they simply watched the athletes, then moved away. About 2 a.m. they decided it was time to calm things and they dispersed the crowd without incident.

Cancer claims deposed shah

No hostage release: militants

Times News Services

World leaders expressed sympathy at the death Sunday of the deposed shah of Iran and some said they hoped it would lead to the release of the 52 American hostages.

But the people Mohammed Reza Pahlavi once ruled danced in the streets at the news he had lost his fight to cancer at the age of 60.

And a spokesman for Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said the death of the deposed monarch would have no effect on the U.S. hostages seized by young Iranian militants to try to force his return for trial. And the militants were reported by the BBC as saying the death will not lead to freedom for the captives because the other half of their original demand — return of the Pahlavi dynasty's wealth — still stands.

They also charged the United States killed the deposed monarch.

(More on the shah page 39)

The United States, which backed the ex-shah during the 38 years he ruled form the Peacock throne, acknowledged his passing in a muted statement that said, "His death marks the end of an era in Iran, which all hope will be followed by peace and stability."

The State Department said President and Mrs. Carter "are sending their personal condolences to the shah's family."

The White House said it could not predict what effect the ousted ruler's death would have on the fate of the American hostages, who spent their 268th day in captivity today.

Former U.S. president Nixon, who is en route to Cairo for the funeral, and a few other foreign leaders mourned the ex-shah publicly.

Tehran Radio withheld news of the shah's death for about two hours after reports flashed from Cairo, then interrupted its regular programming to announce: "Mohammad Reza Pah-

Firemen use ladder-mounted hose on longhouse

Roaring blaze badly chars carvers' longhouse, 2 poles

By NORMAN GIDNEY

A compressor backfire ignited wood preservative and touched off a roaring blaze this morning in the Haida-style longhouse next to the Provincial Museum.

The traditional Indian longhouse used by Indian carvers and two totem poles standing in Thunderbird Park at Belleville and Douglas were badly charred but remained standing after firemen doused the flames.

Witnesses said the fire started about 10:15 a.m. Within minutes the interior of the wooden carving shed was a mass of flame, feeding on dry cedar shavings, logs and boards.

It soon attracted a crowd of spectators, forced back across the street by the intense heat in the early stages.

Carvers Richard Hunt and Tim Paul worked there, replicating old designs for the museum, but neither they nor museum ethnology head Peter McNair could be reached for comment on the damage estimate or the value of the poles.

They had just shipped a large pole to Scotland and several unfinished works were lying on the floor of the shed, badly burnt. Their valued collection of tools was also believed to have been destroyed.

Don Williams, area manager for the B.C. Buildings Corp., said a contractor was spraying wood preservative inside the open-sided longhouse. His compressor backfired when it was started up after refilling and ignited the liquid.

Museum and archives staff just sitting down to coffee next door in the museum coffee shop saw the smoke and ran over with fire extinguishers.

Victoria MLA Gordon Hanson was also hauling hose on the site. He said he had been driving by when a woman shouted to him to call the police because the shed was on fire.

Derek Reimer, head of the archives' aural history division, was another volunteer who tried to put out the blaze before the fire trucks arrived.

Toronto residents Mike and Louise Schwarzer were walking along Belleville in front of Thunderbird Park when they saw a puff of smoke and they watched as the building burst into flames.

Schwarzer said he yelled to park staff, who notified the fire department. The main building was engulfed in flames in a few minutes.

"It burned so fast you'd think there was hay in there. It went up like a matchstick," Schwarzer told the Times.

Airlines start price war on transatlantic flights

LONDON (AP) — A transatlantic fare war erupted today when two of the world's major airlines announced tit-for-tat price cuts on standby tickets and vowed to offer the cheapest flight.

British Airways started the battle on Sunday with plans to undercut even Laker Airways' "no frills" Skytrain service with a London-New York single standby fare of £84 ($233 Canadian).

Today, Trans World Airlines took up the challenge and trimmed its off-peak standby fare to £82.50 ($229).

But within minutes, British Airways knocked a further £2 ($5.50) off their price, making the rate £82 ($227.50). And the airline warned that it is "determined to stay in front" of its rivals and will undercut any price.

Both airlines also cut the fares for flights between London and Boston, Los Angeles, Chicago and Philadelphia.

"It's not a game," said British Airways spokesman Diane Kane.

"We will match them" pledged TWA's vice-president, Neil Effman, at a London news conference. "We are not going to be in the market place with higher fares than anyone else."

The new fares take effect in September and other airlines are expected to follow the TWA and BA lead. Pan American, for example, has already asked to reduce its fares between Britain and the U.S.

BA's latest London-New York fare now is £3 ($8) less than Laker's Skytrain and £14 ($39) below BA's current standby price.

Now the industry is waiting for Laker to make a move.

"We don't know what Laker will do," Effman said.

Airline officials hope that the lower fares, which still require government approval, will help turn around the sagging transatlantic business hit by falling numbers of U.S. passengers deterred from visiting Europe because of the declining dollar

A total of 13 airlines now fly the U.S.-Britain route.

Beer: minister watching but not intervening

Labor Minister Jack Heinrich has no immediate plans to intervene in the B.C. beer industry lockout now in its third day.

If outside sources are not tapped, hotel sources said pub stocks will peter out within three weeks. Liquor stores already are out of beer.

Heinrich said intervention by him would be meaningless until the two sides show a willingness to work toward a settlement.

He said his ministry will watch developments closely and he will take another look at the dispute Tuesday or Wednesday.

Heinrich said appointment of an industrial inquiry commissioner is doubtful because the breweries will not agree with a union request for such an appointment.

The minister said if there is a sign of movement he would prefer to see mediator Ken Albertini come back to resume negotiations.

Molson's, Labatt's and Carling-O'Keefe, largest breweries in the province, locked out about 1,400 members of the Brewery, Winery and Distillery Workers Union early Saturday following a breakdown in contract talks.

In Victoria, the 110-member local — employees of Labatt — held an organizational meeting after setting up pickets this morning.

Spokesmen said their strategy would depend on developments in the next few days, and whether Albertini re-enters the dispute.

Thetis Lake drowning victim found

A 58-year-old city bus driver drowned in Thetis Lake Sunday afternoon.

The body of William Hele, 1755 Kings, was found by other swimmers in about five feet of water in a secluded part of the lake, Colwood RCMP reported.

Foul play is not suspected. It is believed the victim was swimming by himself.

Hele is survived by his wife, Sydna, and a daughter, Mrs. Norma Beauregard of Vancouver.

Ford loss: it's Incredible!

DETROIT (AP) — Nobody knows how much money Ford Motor Co. is going to lose on its home turf this year but it will be — to borrow Ford's advertising slogan — Incredible!

One Wall Street analyst says the company will lose almost $4 billion on the manufacture of cars and trucks in North America. More precisely, the estimate by David Eisenberg, who covers the industry for Sanford C. Bernstein and Co., is $3.979 billion.

Over all, Eisenberg predicts Ford will lose $1.7 billion this year, compared with a profit of $1.17 billion in 1979.

The more-publicized losses at Chrysler Corp., already $1.017 billion for the first six months of the year, could wind up for the full year at $1.2 billion, according to government estimates.

General Motors reported last week it lost $412 million in the second quarter and $257 million so far this year. American Motors Corp. reported a loss of $84.9 million in the quarter ended June 30, the third quarter of its fiscal year. AMC's loss in the past nine months totalled $70.9 million.

To all outside predictions Ford gives a stock answer. Said one spokesman who asked not to be identified: "We don't predict our earnings or losses. We have nothing to say."

A clearer picture may emerge when Ford issues its second-quarter financial statement this week. The company lost $164 million in the first quarter, an overseas profit of $309 million and a loss of $473 million in the U.S.

The turn to small cars and the recession have ravaged Ford.

Princess cartoon stirs storm

EDMONTON (CP) — An editorial cartoon showing Princess Margaret in a prostitute-infested area has sparked a furore in Britain and prompted the Edmonton Sun to say the cartoon was not published for malicious reasons.

The morning tabloid published an editorial cartoon Friday showing Princess Margaret being shooed away from a prostitute-infested area of downtown Edmonton by a burly policeman. A passing motorist was shown leering at the princess who was wearing a low-cut dress and a bracelet with the name "Roddy" inscribed on it.

"The Edmonton Sun is basically in support of the monarchy," said David Bailey, Sun managing editor. "However, we don't believe Princess Margaret is a true member of the Royal Family considering the scandals that have surrounded her.

"The cartoon was not published for malicious reasons nor did we think it was in poor taste."

He said the tabloid used the cartoon in a light-hearted way.

The cartoon made front-page news in Britain with the London Sun calling it an insult to the princess who has just finished a week-long tour of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Brutal slayings in west end Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Police are working on the theory that robbery was a motive in Saturday's brutal slayings of four occupants of a house in the west end of Toronto.

The mutilated bodies of the victims, Leonard Martindale, 55, Pearl Savas, 51, Hugh Thomas Pattengale, 56, and Ronald Edward MacDonald, 48, were found Saturday afternoon in the rear of the home. They were tied up and gagged with their necks slashed.

Neighbors said Miss Savas and Martindale were living together. Pattengale and MacDonald were boarders at the house.

The ease was described by a homicide detective as one of the most gruesome he had ever seen.

Autopsies revealed Miss Savas bled to death from the stab wound in her neck, while Martindale died of a gunshot wound in the head as well as a neck wound. MacDonald died from a neck wound and Pattengale died from a damaged brain and skull fracture resulting from the stabbing.

Martindale, manager of the Boulevard Inn, left his office about 1:30 a.m. Saturday after locking some of the pub's Friday night receipts in the safe, said Marvin Kack, an assistant manager at the pub.

Martindale returned about 20 minutes later, opened the safe and removed most of its contents, Kack said. The bottom half of the safe was "cleaned out" when the inn, about four blocks from the murder scene, opened for business Saturday, he said.

The murders were discovered by a hotel employee, William Horechka, when he was sent to the house by pub owner Albert Nightingale to find out why Martindale had failed to show up for work.

Police said Horechka had tried the front door of the house, then looked in the front window when he got no response. He saw the four bodies lying on the floor in the dining room.

Kack said information that Martindale had returned to the pub after locking up came from Chubb Security Systems, which had to be notified to avoid setting off the alarm system. Police would not say whether any of the victims were used as hostages to force Martindale to open the safe, or whether any money was found in the house.

Dalhousie Cottage a Maclure design

On my noon hour walks I pass a house on Meares Street called Dalhousie Cottage. There is a heritage plaque on the gate. Can you please tell me something of its history, who built it, how did it get its name, etc.?

One of Samuel Maclure's early designs, this house at 941 Meares was built around 1906. The city's directory of heritage homes, This Old House, says Dalhousie Cottage combines several styles Maclure tried to bring together in his early years as an architect in Victoria.

They include Tudor half-timbering, the low profile of the colonial bungalow and picturesque qualities of the Alpine chalet.

"The house has been restored, with painstaking attention to detail, both exterior and interior, along with the garden," says the book.

W. Warburton, an accountant with Windsor Gardens, was the first owner.

Tom Palfrey, a Provincial Museum employee, bought the house three years ago and carried out the restoration, although he says there's still a lot of work to be done inside. Concerning the name of the house, Palfrey has never discovered why it was called Dalhousie Cottage. Neighbors told him the little sign was always there.

Beer Strike? Do it yourself

What's brewing on home front?

By AB KENT

Let the big breweries lock their doors.

Beer drinkers can go home and tap a more reliable source.

Home brewing in Victoria and other parts of North America is the coming thing, as supplier-author Desmond Lundy has found in the 10 years he has operated Fermenthaus.

Even without the current scarcity of commercial beer through labor-management difficulties, Lundy's shop has seen a steady growth of business supplying ingredients, materials and equipment for making many different kinds of beer.

He estimates beer-makers provided only 4 per cent of his trade compared with wine-makers a decade ago. Today his beer business constitutes 75 per cent.

Since 1970 he has seen a 50 per cent growth in wine-makers, but 25 times as many beer-makers.

At Betty Schenck's Wine Arts store the proportion of beer-makers to winemakers has stayed about even, but more sales of beer items is anticipated.

The threat of a beer strike has only begun to show up in Lundy's shop, but is likely to increase with warmer weather.

He expects to sell a 200-litre (45-gallon) drum of concentrated, unfermented wort every two to three weeks for the rest of the summer.

Each barrel makes 20,000 bottles of beer, or 1,750 dozen.

But it will not all be sold locally or in B.C. because Lundy's store is a principal North American importer and supplies retailers in Washington, Oregon, California, New York, New Jersey, Virginia, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Michigan.

He claims to be the only importer of appreciable volumes of European malt and hops, which he has made to formula, then bottles and lables them himself.

He has written Beers, a standard guide for handmade brews, and Liesure Winemaking, both clearly detailed references for the amateur.

Lundy has advice for the panic-stricken, would-be home brewer:

If you think you can rush out, spend a few dollars on equipment and brew up next week's beer over the weekend — forget it. Even bad beer can't be made in five days, he said.

"Beer can't be hurried. But a respectable beer can be made in seven weeks, and it continues to improve in the bottle, even four or five years."

Not that many people would want to wait that long. But contrary to a common belief, beer, like wine, may get better with time.

For $40 a home brewer following directions can made his first five cases of beer, choosing from American lager, Munchen lager, Irish brown ale, English pale ale, German export, stout, Irish chocolate (so called because of its color and character), weissbiers, kalja or kvass, the latter made from malted rye, barley or wheat.

Lundy said the types which can be made are endless. It's something like cheese-making. Purists will not buy the concentrates but grind their own grain and boil up their own mash and hops.

And the taste, they claim, is worth the trouble. It also is cheap, something like $6 for succeeding five-case lots after the first batch.

Even championship beer makers, like Robin McNeil of Saanich and Thomas Robinson of Vancouver — both supplied by Lundy — use only about $150 worth of equipment.

They have been competing for about eight years and have won prizes at regional, provincial and dominion homebrew trials, both specializing in ales and stout.

"The public today wants a wholesome, well-tended process," Lundy said. They are willing to obtain proper ingredients, follow directions closely and use the right equipment.

This means a quality plastic primary fermenter (not a plastic garbage pail) which will not impair the yeast action or allow polyvinylchloride to get into the brew.

It means using good malt, good hops and good yeast.

It means using glass secondary fermenters, airlocks, clean glass bottles (cappable soft drink, champagne or beer bottles) and patience.

GETTING AROUND is easy if you aren't disabled, but for those using crutches and wheelchairs or the blind, getting around downtown Victoria can be a threat to life and limb. Here Doug Ottenbreit begins a jaunt through The Empress Hotel's front yard to scout for hazards, kicking off a two-week campaign by the B.C. Coalition of the Disabled to alert government, businesses and the public to problems that hamper disabled persons' mobility. Volunteers will put stickers on stairways, branches that overhang sidewalks and other potential hazards. If you want to experience one problem, just try selecting the correct elevator button with your eyes closed.

Injured climber rescued

Seven Langford volunteer firefighters and a Colwood RCMP officer rescued a Colwood man from near the summit of Mount Finlayson Sunday.

Ronald Bailey, 30, of Rainville Road, apparently slipped on some loose stones while walking the trail on the mountain's southwest side. He suffered fractures to the ankle and lower leg.

Langford firefighters, led by Chief Al Le Quesne, drove up the east slope of the mountain in a four-wheel drive rescue vehicle.

Gordie Johnston, a paramedic with the provincial Emergency Health Services and a volunteer firefighter, secured Bailey's leg and ankle so he could be moved by basket stretcher to a nearby rescue vehicle.

Bailey was then driven about 400 yards down the mountain to an RCMP helicopter which took him to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Bailey is reported today in fairly good condition.

Regal time for Que: students

Twenty-five students from Quebec will enjoy some vice-regal hospitality Thursday.

The students, working in the B.C. public service for the summer as part of an exchange program with Quebec, will be at Government House for a swim party and barbecue.

The next day, Lieut.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving and Mrs. Bell-Irving will board a Canadian armed forces plane in Vancouver to fly to Cyprus where they will visit the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Causeway bus battle flares

The so-called "war of the tour buses" on the Causeway today turned into a battle of words and a struggle for parking space as one operator hogged half the slots.

City hall has threatened — once again — to force all the companies off Government in front of The Empress if they can't keep the peace.

A Gray Lines official said he hoped the companies could sort things out themselves. A meeting is scheduled for Wednesday at which principals of the four bus companies would discuss the problem, he said.

This morning, all of the tour companies had buses circling the block at one point or other, waiting to slide into the curb the moment one pulled out with a fresh load of tourists.

Some had been going around the hotel four or five times before a spot opened up.

Jim Gorst, owner of Marguerite Tours, had four doubledecker buses in front of the hotel on Government while competing Gray Lines and Conmac Stage Lines had room for only two.

The usually talkative former MLA for Esquimalt wouldn't comment on the dispute and was angry when a reporter asked him about the dispute.

"It's a nice sunny day," he snapped. "No comment."

The Gray Lines man said there were too many companies competing for the summer business and he resented the fact the other companies were only there when the tourist season hit a peak.

"We're here 12 months of the year providing a service. These guys are just out for July and August," he said, referring to Marguerite Tours and Conmac, the newcomer in the field.

It seemed to be an ironic situation for Gorst. Four years ago when he set up his own tour bus firm, he was the loudest complainer about the established companies freezing out the newcomers from the limited parking space available.

Mayor Bill Tindall said on the weekend he is ready to clear the Causeway of all buses as the ultimate solution.

It's a threat the city has been making for nearly a decade. The last time was 1977 when Marguerite Tours appeared on the scene. Then there were five companies with about 100 buses competing for the six parking slots on Government.

The problem appeared to go away on its own, but a recent decision by the provincial government awarding tour operator's licences to Conmac — which recently lost its airport service — and another firm has revived the old grievances.

Illegitimate births up 17%

The number of illegitimate births in B.C. increased 17 per cent last year, according to the annual report of the provincial health ministry.

The report says illegitimate births accounted for 15.5 per cent of all live births — a record.

Health Minister Rafe Mair says a program to combat unwanted pregnancies is more urgent than ever. He has a proposal before the treasury board which he hopes will soon be approved.

He says he can't reveal details at this time.

Earlier this year Mair said a community education drive would probably be an effective means of countering the trend toward increased teenaged pregnancies.

The latest report also shows venereal diseases also rose in 1979, with the gonorrhea rate climbing from 355.9 cases per 100,000 in 1978 to 365.8 per 100,000.

Heart afflictions remained the leading cause of death in B.C. Cancer, the second biggest killer, continued to take an ever higher number of victims. The 1979 rate for all types of cancer was 164 deaths per 100,000, compared with 160 per 100,000 in 1978.

Furnace blast clears hotel

Guests at the James Bay Inn at 270 Government were evacuated Sunday evening when a blowback on the oil-fired furnace created a lot of smoke.

After the fire department checked out the heating system, guests were allowed to return.

Assistant manager Don McGee ordered the evacuation and although it proved unnecessary, a fire department official termed it a good move.
